

TAUGHT AT DUNCAN

Former School Teacher Handles Ticklish Viet Job

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Ormond Dier is Canada's unflappable, light-hearted man in Hanoi and Saigon.

But his imperturbable approach and acute sense of the humor of a situation masks a tough mind that never loses sight of the objective.

The objective at present is an end to hostilities and a peaceful settlement in Vietnam, where the 48-year-old school teacher-turned-diplomat is the senior Canadian representative on the three-nation International Control Commission.

A visit this week to the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi places him in an almost unique position to use his talents and training to further the peace objective.

He knows war from frontline experience in the Second World War and he has a proven ability with a delicate political situation, such as surrounds negotiations at an end of the Vietnam conflict.

CAREER DIPLOMAT

His insight into political situations arises partly from his diplomatic postings in Europe and South and Central America during a 20-year career as foreign service officer, and partly from serving two Canadian prime ministers as foreign affairs adviser.

DIER
... top man on ICC

His personal likes and dislikes rarely surfaced and many who knew him picked the same word to describe him—deep.

Born at Vancouver March 21, 1919, he put himself through the University of British Columbia in the late 1930s and early 1940s by working in logging camps and writing for Vancouver newspapers as campus correspondent.

Even in those days he showed a reporting ability that proved useful later in diplomatic service.

"He mastered the art of picking out the key elements of a situation and stringing them together in readable fashion," said one longtime friend.

Active in students affairs and sports, he remains a first-class, left-handed golfer and a strong swimmer.

PASSION FOR BATHS

He was never a fastid but, after a term as chief of Canada's mission in Finland, he returned home with a passion for sauna bathing.

Mr. Dier enlisted in 1942 as a captain flying small artillery observation planes.

Later he returned to British Columbia to launch a teaching career. He taught high school at Duncan for two years before he followed a number of college classmates into the foreign service.

Mr. Dier served as a vice-president in Chicago, moved up to third secretary in Mexico, second secretary in Venezuela, first secretary in Denmark and their charge d'affaires in Finland.

His college and space-rate newspaper experience from UBC days helped in his next assignment—press liaison in Ottawa.

After about two years as special assistant, covering the final period of Mr. Diefenbaker's term of office and the first months of Mr. Pearson's, he was appointed ambassador to Colombia and Ecuador. From there he was named early this year as senior Canadian representative on the ICC.

His wife, the former Shirley Nesbitt of Vancouver, accompanied him to Saigon when he took up his post there in February. Their three children are at school in Canada.

LIBERAL MP:

'Guaranteed Income Makes Sense'

MOUNT ROYAL, Que. (CP)—The concept of a guaranteed annual income for all Canadians deserves immediate attention, the parliamentary secretary to Manpower Minister Marchand said Wednesday night.

John Munro (Hamilton East) told the Mount Royal Federal Liberal Association the guaranteed income "seems to me the most practical and important concept of fighting poverty that we have today."

Under such a program, everyone would file an income tax report.

Those who fall below the minimum acceptable income, which would be gauged according to family units size, would receive a rebate to bring them up to the standard."

Mr. Munro said the scheme is an extension of the basic concept of the recently-approved guaranteed-income plan for older citizens—which ensures recipients a minimum income of $105 a month.

WILL FORCE CHANGES

"The guaranteed income plan would make possible, indeed necessary, the abolition and dismantling of almost all of our present programs."

"Welfare benefits at municipal and provincial levels would be superfluous; the federal programs of family allowances and the like would be unnecessary; the means for determining income subsidy are already available in the income tax process."

Under the plan, the "billions Canada spends today in all forms of relief and assistance would be diverted to this more sensible and logical plan."

"And over the long run, we would save money...."

The survivors, all young, were taken by helicopter to an Austrian field hospital. The hospital director said one man, a Swiss, was in "relatively good condition."

The other survivors were a Swiss air hostess, a German woman and a German man.

Globeair, a small Swiss charter firm, said the flight was organized jointly by the travel bureau of a Frankfurt, Germany, department store, and a Swiss bureau in Zurich.

Nicosia Airport employees said the plane made one low run over the runway and then turned, apparently to make a second landing run, before it crashed.

Aviations' worst disaster was the collision of a United Airlines DC-8 jet and a Trans World Airlines superconstellation over Staten Island, New York, Dec. 16, 1960. It killed 134 persons, including six on the ground.

BOMBS

banks of the Cua Cam River. They furnish power for the docks which handle more than half of the nation's war imports.

In the first strikes, anti-aircraft and missile fire from the ground was moderate.

"I think we caught them asleep," said Cmdr. Richard Powell, on Hanford, Calif., the strike leader.

Then, at 5 p.m. Hanoi time, the second wave of jets flashed off the decks of the two carriers streaking back for another shot at the targets.

This time the Ticonderoga raiders went in first, followed by jets from the Kitty Hawk. The pilots reported back from over their targets that they ran into heavy ground fire, and had limited visibility but their bombs were on target.

Later, after dark, reconnaissance planes reported the city of Haiphong was totally blacked out. So was Hon Gai, about 23 miles to the east. Navy planes earlier had knocked out the power plant at Hon Gai, and it had been drawing power from Haiphong.

There was no immediate official bomb damage assessment, but pilots estimated that the Haiphong West power plant was totally destroyed and the Haiphong East about 80 percent destroyed.

Cadet Team Wins First Aid Trophies

Two trophies were brought home from a Vancouver competition Saturday by the first aid team of the Queen's Own Rifles cadet corps of Esquimalt.

The team won the Strathcona Trust trophy over 13 other B.C. cadet teams. Team captain Tom Nelson also won the Bowditch Trophy for best team leadership.

Other team members were G. Porter, T. McCooey, I. McLeod, R. Walmsley and M. Baker.

CRASH PROGRAM STARTED

Canadian Peace Force For Vietnam Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence headquarters is drawing up emergency contingency plans to dispatch Canadian troops to Vietnam's shoulder any peacekeeping force be established there.

A defence department spokesman said Wednesday night that it is normal to draw up contingency plans for an operation which might be mounted at some future date.

But he conceded that planning for a Vietnam peacekeeping operation was undertaken on a crash basis only hours after External Affairs Minister Martin stated last Tuesday that Canada would be prepared to participate in a Vietnam peacekeeping operation.

No details of the planning were officially disclosed.

Unofficially, it was said the plan involve a battalion group—some 1,000 men—and its air and sea transportation and housing accommodation.

GUARDS LIKELY

The unit most likely to get the assignment would be the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, stationed at Picton, Ont., which has been on stand-by for possible peacekeeping duty for some time.

An external affairs department spokesman said Canadian peacekeeping experience is being re-evaluated to determine what role Canadians might play in Vietnam if the terms of reference for the International Control Commission are widened.

Under present terms, dating from the 1954 ceasefire agreement arranged at Geneva, the Canada-India-Poland commission has no authority to set up a peacekeeping operation along the lines of the United Nations forces in Egypt and Cyprus.

The commission, which operated successfully in 1954-56 in overseeing implementation of the Geneva agreement, has been impotent for a decade as an observer of the Vietnam situation.

The commission has headquarters in Saigon but also maintains an office in Hanoi.

GOES TO HANOI

Ormond Dier, 48, new senior Canadian representative on the commission, will make his first visit to Hanoi late this week and will discuss with North Vietnamese authorities Mr. Martin's four-point plan for a ceasefire.

Mr. Dier is expected to report back to Ottawa on his Hanoi visit before Mr. Martin confers in New York April 27 with United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

In a statement to the Commons external affairs committee last Tuesday, Mr. Martin outlined his plan, the first stage of which would be disengagement in the six-mile-wide "demilitarized" zone between North and South Vietnam.

In Washington, it was officially reported that the United States has offered to help establish with the Communists a 26-mile-wide truce strip between South and North Vietnam.

REJECTED IN EDITORIAL

A Communist newspaper editorial in Hanoi has rejected Mr. Martin's proposal, which called for an end to Communist infiltration into South Vietnam as well as U.S. bombing of the North.

But the minister said Monday it is his impression that Hanoi has not yet studied the plan's full text.

Ever since 1949, when Canada began participation in the Kashmir and Palestine observer missions on behalf of the UN, this country has been able to mount peacekeeping operations quickly.

In 1964, the Canadian advance party for the UN force in Cyprus was on the way by air even before the UN Security Council formally approved the operation.

In 1950, a Canadian naval flotilla was en route to Korea hours after this country agreed to participate in the UN operation there.

In 1956, Canadian troops were among the first to reach the Suez Canal in the UN operation to stop the Israeli-Egyptian war in which Britain and France intervened.

If such a force were established under the aegis of the control commission, Canada, India and Poland likely would be the only participants.

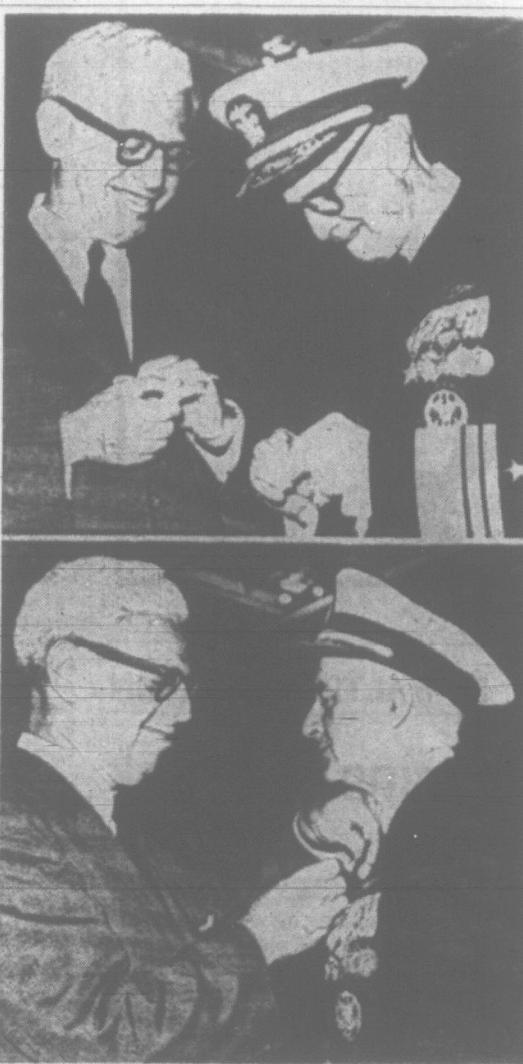

If one were established under the UN, many nations—possibly excluding Canada—would probably contribute military personnel.

Prime Minister Pearson has said that a peace force for Vietnam accept personnel from only Asian and African countries.

There now are 95 Canadians—66 military and 29 civilian—in Indochina, most of them in Vietnam. The commission also supervises the 1954 truce in Laos and Cambodia.

Shot to Death

THERE'S this little catch you see and, once it's undone, it's a pretty simple job. And this all came about when Ambassador Arthur Goldberg wanted to present the Legion of Merit Wednesday to Vice-Adm. John S. McCain Jr.—and he did it with a little help. McCain put on his glasses, top, and opened the clasp for Goldberg. Then he removed his glasses, stood at attention and the ambassador pinned the medal on the already crowded uniform. Ceremony was aboard USS Wasp in N.Y. Harbor.

LITTLE OPTIMISM

Thorny Issues Will Face UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—In an atmosphere of gloom, the 122-country UN General Assembly will open a special session Friday to deal with South Africa and rule of South-West Africa and with the problems of peacekeeping.

Diplomats have expressed little optimism about prospects for progress on these issues at the session, expected to last about three weeks. The general expectation is that both issues will be sent back to committee.

Canada is a member of both the peacekeeping and South-West African special committees.

The 14-country committee on South-West Africa, set up in November to figure out how the UN can end South African rule in the former German colony, has been unable to agree on recommendations to the assembly.

Canada concedes that the 15-country Security Council is the organ primarily responsible for peacekeeping, as article 24 of the UN charter stipulates.

It maintains, however, with the support of the United States and some other countries, that the assembly should be able to act when the council is prevented from doing so by a big-power veto.

France and the Soviet Union have refused to contribute to the support of some UN peace forces on the grounds that they were improperly authorized.

This refusal led to a debt on peacekeeping operations, which still amounts to about $30,000,000, and the assembly decided in 1965 to request all member countries to make voluntary contributions to overcome the deficit without compromising their positions on the financing of specific operations.

Revolution Only Way For Latin America'

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro charged Wednesday night that the U.S. government, in a panic over revolutionary activity in Bolivia, Guatemala, Colombia and Venezuela, has sent in 1,000 Special Forces troops.

He said U.S. special forces are pouring into Bolivia from Panama disguised as tourists. But he said the lesson of Vietnam was that imperialists have been unable to destroy revolution.

He said Guevara "is in magnificent health" and "is ready for an armed guerrilla fight." Cuban officials Sunday distributed a message which they said came from Guevara calling for revolutionaries to create "two or three—many Vietnamese."

"The only road for the people of Latin America is that revolution," he said this very day.

Castro called the summit conference of Western Hemisphere presidents at Punta del Este last week "a tremendous failure." The conference's plans for a Latin American Common Market were a U.S. plot to get more raw materials at cheaper prices, he charged.

EXTRA DAY TO PAY UP

OTTAWA (CP)—Taxpayers will have until Monday, May 1, to file their 1966 income tax returns, Revenue Minister Benson said Wednesday in the Commons.

The extra day is permitted because the usual closing date for filing returns falls Sunday, April 30.

DOUBLE USED TO PICTURE GUEVARA?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Former associates of Che Guevara, the vanished international guerrilla leader, say purported Guevara photos published in Havana are those of a double.

They say his eyes, forehead, nose and lips don't jibe with those in the pictures.

"Che didn't even smoke cigars that way," said one of Guevara's closest acquaintances, Raul Diaz. "He smoked them drooping."

Diaz accompanied Fidel and Raul Castro, Guevara, and 78 other revolutionaries from Mexico to Cuba aboard the expeditionary yacht Granma in 1956.

"It definitely isn't Che," he said. "It is a good imitation, but you can't perform plastic surgery on eyes. Che's eyes are slanted, and these are not."

Other exiles acquainted with the once powerful figure in the Castro regime agreed that it was not Guevara.

Leadership Fight 'Form of Suicide'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Patrick Denton, president of the Fort George New Democratic Party constituency, said Tuesday the party "is attempting a form of suicide by chopping off the leaders when unsuccessful in an election."

Mr. Denton was commenting on the NDP leadership challenge of Vancouver MLA Tom Berger, who seeks to displace leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Denton said some party members "are looking for a scapegoat and Robert Strachan is it."

Message from Canada

IN AN APPEARANCE BEFORE the students of the University of California at Santa Barbara a few days ago, Prime Minister Pearson delivered a penetrating, analytical lecture of the type that reveals his own academic background, the political philosophy that made him one of the world's leading international experts, and the common-sense humanitarianism that gives warmth to his concept of the good life for mankind.

Sketching the rapid evolution of our modern world, Mr. Pearson took the opportunity to advise his audience on the best course of life for the individual and for the nation of today. In the former case he met the challenge of his locality — a state in which the far-out manifestations of modern youth have estranged the present generation from the one that preceded it. And in the second category he fulfilled his warning that Canada would feel free to speak openly and frankly to its giant neighbor on topics that are of mutual concern.

"The drug is no answer to the Bomb," Mr. Pearson told his student audience. The problems of human existence cannot be evaded through chemical escape.

The really 'hip' person today is the one who can look reality in the face with a minimum of fear and illusion, and with the courage to act according to its requirements and try to do something sensible and practical about it as a discharge of his personal obligation to society.

"The real liberators in the world today," he said, "are not those who rebel against reality or responsibility, but those who rebel against unreality and irresponsibility; who reject violence and extremism — reactionary or anarchic; who fight intolerance, prejudice, discrimination,

Konrad Adenauer

ALTHOUGH HIS LATER YEARS in office portrayed West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer as an unyielding political dogmatist and one very unwilling to relinquish power in an era that was ending, the achievements of Der Alte, the Old Man, earned him admiration and a prominent place in the history of the post-war decades.

One of the few potential German leaders acceptable to the Allies at the close of the Second World War, this former mayor of Cologne won support as a focus of West German aspirations and reached the top national governmental post by 1949 at an age when most men have retired. He held the centre of the stage until 1963, when at 87 he made way for Chancellor Erhard. He still, however, retained his seat in parliament.

An implacable foe of Communism, he also opposed Nazism and was driven from public life by the Hitler regime. He thus had two full-size careers in a life that spanned the old Europe, the turbulent war years

Road Map for the Future

PLANNING, A RECOGNIZED ESSENTIAL for communities looking ahead to developments which will influence their amenities and characters, attains new dimensions in studies now proceeding in the United States.

Under the leadership of Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, scientists, sociologists and others are concerning themselves with the impact of technology on the civilization of the next century. They want to explore in advance some of the problems that could be critical up to 100 years hence.

Basically they seek information and plans of action to predetermine "the impact of advancing technology — its benefits and hazards — on the future of the individual and his environment." And, Senator Muskie wants the studies undertaken now before American cities are physically and politically doomed.

In addition to studying widely recognized problems of pollution, tion, and all forms of injustice."

That is a tall order for youth today, but it embodies principles which have been tested through the ages: the basic belief that problems must be met, not fled from.

In the larger sphere, Mr. Pearson was equally down-to-earth. In the environment of today, he said, "it is unrealistic to think of the world in terms of separated and self-sufficient sovereign states; or even any longer in terms of blocs—communist, anti-communist or uncommitted. Communism is not a system of life or rule that our free societies will tolerate. But it is not any longer the solid and united world political force that with justification we thought it to be some years back, driving towards world domination even at the risk of world conflict."

For many of his listeners, that must have been somewhat new concept, for the United States apparently has not yet achieved the relative tolerance of Communism seen in Britain or Canada. But Mr. Pearson recognized the problem of the United States as the leader of the western world, where to uphold freedom and order can so often put the nation in direct opposition to Communist ideas of political progress.

"I feel strongly, however," he said, "that the problem should no longer be approached on the assumption that if a state goes Communist by domestic action, that state now automatically becomes a satellite of Moscow or Peking and thereby a threat to peace."

Much was said in Santa Barbara that could profit filter through to Washington. Mr. Pearson exercised the right of a friendly neighbor to be friendly—and frank. And more than students could gain by it.

... anyway, to make a long story short ...

FROM WASHINGTON

An Unwise Speech, a Worsening Outlook

AT the meeting of the foreign ministers of the SEATO countries, Mr. Paul Hasluck of Australia saluted the United States for having accepted "the responsibilities of power" in Asia. Inevitably, he found himself alluding to the non-acceptance of military responsibility in Asia by the other leading military powers of SEATO. Britain, France, Pakistan, Mr. Hasluck became involved in talking of the West European countries as a whole, not one of whom has a single combat soldier in Vietnam fighting for the defense of freedom and the maintenance of peace on earth. Mr. Hasluck said that their "lack of interest in Asia today is isolation in its most feeble form." According to the dictionary, the word "feeble" means "foolish, futile, and inefficient."

All this may turn out to have been a rather feeble contribution to the efficiency and effectiveness of the SEATO alliance. For it will certainly not produce one more combat soldier in South Vietnam.

The real question at issue in the United States and in Western Europe is whether in accepting the responsibilities of power, President Johnson is exercising that power wisely. The crucial issues between the president and his serious critics is whether the right way to exercise the responsibilities of American power in Asia is to engage in a war of attrition, a "bleeding" strategy in which we exchange in some ratio American lives for Asian lives.

Want Way Out

In point of fact there are very few informed Americans who think that President Johnson made the right decision; there are very few who do not at least privately regret that he involved this country as he has. And there are few Americans today, be they doves who want to negotiate a way out, or hawks who think the United States can bomb and fight itself out, who do not feel that the real problem is how to extricate this country honorably and decently from the consequences of President Johnson's mistake.

The argument here and in Western Europe is not about whether the United States has responsibilities in Asia. The idea that the critics of the Johnson policy want to retreat from the Pacific is a straw man put up to hide the real subject of discussion. It is indisputable that the United States is a great power in the Pacific—and that it has responsibilities which it will not evade, among them the security of countries like Australia and New Zealand and the Philippines which lie within the effective reach of American power in the Pacific.

Having just learned from the budget that there would be a few tax reductions and little easing of credit, the voters administered a series of resounding defeats to candidates of the governing Labor Party. Instead of the moderate losses it expected, the party found itself facing a rout at the hands of the Conservatives. In London, Labor-controlled for 33 years, 64 of the 100 central council seats were wrested from Labor by the Tories.

Mr. Hasluck should understand that the defence of Australia really depends on a land war in Indochina, the prospects for his country are grim indeed. For while President Johnson may possibly be able to win something like a victory over Hanoi, it is in the highest degree unrealistic to think that the United States will exercise its responsibilities by standing guard permanently in Vietnam. The truth of the matter is that Australia, which is a continental island, must depend for its security on its own policy and power, reinforced by the sea and air power of the United States.

Big Development Ignored

In the rather meager reporting of the SEATO meeting there was no indication that anyone paid any serious attention to the most important development in the recent history of the war. This is the arrangement reached by negotiation within the Communist world by which Hanoi can be supplied across Chinese territory by the Soviet Union and the East European countries. If this arrangement holds, it will destroy one of the basic assumptions of American military and political policy. That policy relies upon the disorders in China and the quarrel between Peking and

FROM LONDON

Riding a Crest of Unpopularity

THREE'S no place for faint-heartedness in the British government, for over the coming months it will be necessary to maintain most of the tough economic controls imposed last year if the substantial gains to date are not to be jeopardized. But the public is losing patience with the "freeze," and to continue it will mean riding out a wave of unpopularity. The government had an indication of the public's temper at last week's local elections.

Having just learned from the budget that there would be a few tax reductions and little easing of credit, the voters administered a series of resounding defeats to candidates of the governing Labor Party. Instead of the moderate losses it expected, the party found itself facing a rout at the hands of the Conservatives. In London, Labor-controlled for 33 years, 64 of the 100 central council seats were wrested from Labor by the Tories.

If it had been a general election the results would likely have brought down the government. No one hesitates to draw this conclusion because there is little difference here between the Labor party at the local and national level.

The Conservatives naturally have taken a new lease on life. It is their first real success since they lost control of Parliament in 1964. Disillusionment with Ted Heath, the Tory leader, has vanished overnight and he will be a much more formidable adversary for Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Meat for Critics

The defeat will also encourage Mr. Wilson's critics within the Labor party, some of whom consider the freeze antisocialistic, because it has boosted unemployment and prevents workers' wages from rising. Labor union and left wing backbenchers will undoubtedly step up their demand that most of the current restraints be dropped soon.

However the prime minister is in a strong position to resist such pressure because he still has three full years of power before him. He has consistently intimated that he is "playing it long" taking tough and unpopular measures now which will bear fruit in time for the next election. Though the local election losses were worse than he could have expected the consensus appears to be that he will put his head down and press ahead with his economic hard line.

Where he is likely to move is to meet his critics on family allowances, pockets of high unemployment and possibly on the much publicized problem of serious poverty. Politically acceptable ways of raising family allowances are being sought and a plan for aiding high unemployment areas such as Wales and Scotland has been made public and could be introduced this year. Industry in such areas would receive subsidies totalling $300 million.

General Path

The general path Mr. Wilson would like to follow is set out in the budget. More than usual it revealed the government's long-term economic thinking.

The surtaxes and credit restrictions imposed as part of last year's emergency are largely maintained, the surtaxes being adjusted to allow the chancellor of the exchequer to raise or lower them by 10 per cent by order in council. The total effect is to reinforce the government's firm control over consumer demand and to ensure that it can make good its budget pledge to run the economy at a slightly lower level of demand than has been customary.

Weak Effort

New York Times

The United Nations mission to South Arabia had planned to stay three weeks and visit all 17 states making up the federation that is to become independent next year. Instead, it has packed up and left Aden after less than five days, charging the British authorities with failure to co-operate.

Britain has made plenty of mistakes in trying to guide a jerry-built federation toward independence and has given the impression lately that her only remaining anxiety was to shuck off the burden and clear out of South Arabia at the earliest possible moment.

Yet the behavior of the three-man team appointed by Secretary-General Thant has been strange from the outset and it cannot escape heavy responsibility for its own utter failure.

Perhaps its mandate from the General Assembly barred it from dealing with the Federation Government as a government, but it could at least have conferred informally with individual ministers as representing one facet of Arab opinion in the area. It refused to do so at the home of the British High Commissioner.

The UN trio also refused to grant interviews requested by two political organizations, the South Arabian League and the United National party. Yet it tried to talk to political detainees in the British camp at Mansoura in a visit that touched off fighting between British troops and Arab nationalists. The UN representatives then had to be evacuated by helicopter after the prisoners had refused to talk with them.

Most of the prisoners were from the Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen (FLOSSY) and its rival, the National Liberation Front (NLF). Even before the mission left New York, these two groups had said they would boycott it.

It might be unfair to suggest that the mission chairman, Dr. Perez-Guerrero of Venezuela, and his colleagues from Afghanistan and Mali had decided in advance to listen to only one kind of Arab and had been frustrated when both FLOSSY and the NLF made good their boycott threats. It is not unfair to say that the UN mission should have made a greater effort to carry out its assignment, that its reasons for giving up so soon are not convincing, and that it must take some blame now for the rapidly deteriorating situation in South Arabia.

To the Editor

May Day!

Until Revenue Minister Benson announced a one-day extension in the income tax filing deadline after April 30, I have never found "May Day" an appropriate signal of distress. Now I do.—"Call Me Early, Mother."

Looking Back

From The Times of April 20, 1967:

Ottawa — In the House today Hon. R. Lemieux stated the reports as to conditions in the mines in the West were grossly exaggerated. There was no strike and no lockout. The only difficulty arose through the operators putting up a notice that wages were to be reduced on May 10, which was against the law.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux contend that exaggerated reports were sent to the press and that the men would soon return to work.

The general path Mr. Wilson would like to follow is set out in the budget. More than usual it revealed the government's long-term economic thinking.

The surtaxes and credit restrictions imposed as part of last year's emergency are largely maintained, the surtaxes being adjusted to allow the chancellor of the exchequer to raise or lower them by 10 per cent by order in council. The total effect is to reinforce the government's firm control over consumer demand and to ensure that it can make good its budget pledge to run the economy at a slightly lower level of demand than has been customary.

I think it is important to preserve some of the classic Irish dishes in a special Irish cookbook. In this world of plastic dinners and frozen food and things, it's a good thing for people to know what is the traditional, which is nearly always the best way of cooking.

Radicals on Campus

By REV. G. F. MCGUIGAN

Not only is the number of radical students growing but their ideas will be the accepted thought of university professors in the future.

Many of them will become professors themselves.

A sure sign that radical students' aspirations for a better society will become accepted university thought is the fact that their thoughts have come out in the open.

They are well on the way to being accepted by people who now speak of them as idealistic and utopian.

Socialism in the 1930s was considered radical. But today socialism is an accepted political thought.

Radical thought and action is already a part of our environment. But we teach as though it were not, simply because we have no formal theories to deal with the new ideas.

Because radical thought refuses to be categorized we are not prepared to accept it formally or include it as a normal part of university teaching.

But the university will not be the same sort of institution in the future.

Although the secret thoughts of many administrators harbor a respect for the innovators, the unconventional, the rebel, as an institution the university is designed to encourage conformity, acceptance and the status quo.

Practical Policy

As practical policy the university approves the clean cut student who has all his goals firmly in mind. Such a student doesn't disturb the university machinery.

It is unfair and inaccurate to lump all the radical students under a blanket condemnation of unkempt, wild, ungrateful, irresponsible, pot smoking and anarchistic.

Idealism is easily called utopianism if you want to condemn it. A desire for honesty and the right of the individual to have a say in his own future is labelled naivety. Fear of oppression and loss of freedom is called anarchism. The desire to develop a social conscience is called communism or Marxism.

These are arguments of frustration. They are techniques of opposition which get no one anywhere and are bound to widen the gap between the two camps.

When this happens the student is forced to search for a philosophy to rationalize his frustration and provide him with a justification for deliberately creating situations of confrontation with the university.

Father McGuigan, professor of economic history at the University of British Columbia, wrote his master's degree thesis on radicalism and has since studied the radical student movement in Canadian universities. He examined the subject in an interview with Kathy Tait, of The Vancouver Province, recently. These are some excerpts from that interview.

The university certainly has a political role in our society. It knowingly and unknowingly inculcates those virtues which are necessary for the survival of our particular form of society.

The student says the university is political he is saying that it is perfectly willing to be detached about the examination and questioning of any political, economic or social order except its own.

It only becomes apparent that the university has a political role when it is threatened by a new way of looking at things. Then it takes a defensive stance.

The radical student is putting the old accepted unconscious framework up to inspection.

The student is saying that institutions, not just university institutions, become obsolete as a means of facilitating fruitful human relations; that they become so entrenched they actually prevent adaptation to new requirements.

Think of all the fuss and scandal caused by the London School of Economics in its day.

Where is that radical doctrine taught today? In Canada's most orthodox economics departments of course. This formerly radical

They are mostly businessmen. This is so because universities have tended to become businesses. They provide the resources of trained people for business and government. It is not the true education of free exploration of human affairs, thoughts and aspirations. The trouble is if the university is given this sort of freedom it is liable to say many disagreeable things. Things which would destroy its public image.

Society pays the shot. The public doesn't want the university to teach anything except what the public wants to hear.

If we believe in intellectual freedom the student should be given an honest chance to choose.

Is the university afraid to see its point of view in competition with other possible sets of values?

Radical students are in many cases as much opposed to the power structures of communism as they are to those of western capitalism.

They want a Canada which is anxious to redress the injustices done to Eskimos and to Indians and to the hard core poor in the cities.

They want to redress the injustice in underdeveloped countries.

They want to create a society in which the person receives priority, not the rules of the system.

They are looking for a love and friendship which does not allow ideologies to intervene in its fulfillment.

THAT VIMY AFFAIR

Dear Brigitte Landres, Gen. de Gaulle Wrote

By GEORGE BAIN
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — No one needs to go on wondering what lay behind the misunderstandings that surrounded the Vimy re-enactment.

One day, in cabinet, Roger Teillet, the minister for veterans affairs, coughed and said that it was about time they started thinking about the Vimy ceremony which would be coming up soon.

The prime minister turned to the man next to him and said, behind his hand, "Who is that?" The man said, "Roger Teillet. You know; the minister for veterans affairs." The prime minister said, "So that's Teillet," and then, aloud, "Good thinking, Rog; what have you in mind?"

So Mr. Teillet said that since it was the 50th anniversary coming up, he'd like to do something special. He'd like to get together a lot of important men like Prince Philip, and General de Gaulle, in his country.

GEN. DE GAULLE
... "lack of self-confidence known only to his intimates."

and Paul Hellyer, and perhaps a bunch of Canadian generals. Mr. Hellyer said that he didn't have a bunch of Canadian generals any more, what with one thing and another, and, as for himself, he couldn't take the time away from his sewing machine if he hoped to have his new collection of uniforms ready for summer showing.

Everyone thought it would be grand if Prince Philip and General de Gaulle could come, but then an argument developed about protocol, some saying that Prince Philip had to be asked first because he would be there representing the sovereign, and some insisting that it should be General de Gaulle because Vimy Ridge was in his country.

Many difficulties have to be solved, of course, before we can build a computer that we would regard as in all ways our intellectual equal or superior.

There seems to be four main problems—creativity, pattern recognition, memory capacity and language. But we can already see in general terms how they are solved.

Computers have already done many things which, if they had been done by a person, would have been regarded as creative and original. Though no great symphonies have been composed by computers, and when we remember that the amount of human effort put into this field is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Nevertheless, existing computers are vastly inferior to man at pattern recognition. This imposes a very severe limitation on the information that can be fed to them.

At the moment, a computer cannot take in information about the world simply by sensing it directly itself. If computers are to be able to think about problems as deeply as man, they must clearly have access to the same range of information that man himself acquires in a lifetime. They must be able to look at the world directly, to read books and to hold conversations; all these things involve pattern recognition.

Attempts are now being made to program computers

When Computers Take Over The Management of the World

By N. S. SUTHERLAND

Prof. Sutherland, who teaches experimental psychology at Britain's Essex University, discusses the revolutionary changes which will be worked on the world as a result of the rapid advances now being made in computer science.

Again, he may be able to use storing vast quantities unless the right information can be called up quickly when needed.

The capacity of human beings to recover quickly relevant information stored in their brains far exceeds that of any existing computer.

Although a person cannot say what rules he has used to find this kind of solution, this does not mean that rules do not exist.

The problem of programming computers to learn their own intuitive rules to guide them in finding solutions is a formidable one, but progress is being made.

For example, two scientists have programmed a computer to find proofs in elementary logic: the computer prints statements about the steps it takes, and the results can be distinguished from similar ones by students learning to find their own proofs. This branch of artificial intelligence—building machines to take short cuts to a solution—is known as heuristics and is being actively pursued at present.

The last problem is: how can a computer be programmed to accept an input in a natural language such as English, French or Russian?

Although the languages now used by computers are very much more precise than any natural language, they are very much less flexible.

Moreover, if we want to communicate readily with a computer we must be able to talk to it in our own language.

To give future computers the same start in life that humans have, they need to be able to read and to understand speech.

Once again, the problem looks much less formidable than it did a few years ago. Much of this advance is due to the work of a linguist—Noam Chomsky, working at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Important human insights often come as the result of following an analogy. There is no reason why computers should not be programmed to look for analogies between one type of problem and another, and to obtain solutions in this way.

The first process will be forced upon us as the ability of computers to process information comes to match and surpass that of man. The second process will result from our increased understanding of the way in which our own behavior is determined by the atoms and molecules of which we are composed.

Within 40 or 50 years, there will be computers that we shall regard as intelligent beings. This statement may seem far-fetched. But it becomes plausible when we consider what has been achieved in the past 25 years by a handful of scientists working on the problem of artificial intelligence and when we remember that the amount of human effort put into this field is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Nevertheless, existing computers are vastly inferior to man at pattern recognition. This imposes a very severe limitation on the information that can be fed to them.

At the moment, a computer cannot take in information about the world simply by sensing it directly itself. If computers are to be able to think about problems as deeply as man, they must clearly have access to the same range of information that man himself acquires in a lifetime. They must be able to look at the world directly, to read books and to hold conversations; all these things involve pattern recognition.

Attempts are now being made to program computers to accept and answer questions in natural languages about subjects which have more practical uses—for example, to give information about light times and vacant seats on aircraft. Undoubtedly it will ultimately be feasible to program a computer to achieve the same mastery of English that we ourselves have.

There is indeed, no obvious upper limit to the intelligence of a computer. To make it go outside the limits of the problems set by man, it would of course be necessary to build into it certain goals such as intellectual curiosity. Once this is done, computers will be able to look for new problems to solve, as well as solving the ones we put to them.

In fact, the next step may be development of such machines. The human race may be superseded by its own artifacts.

Although there seems no doubt that we shall eventually be able to build machines which think much more efficiently than we do, and which will behave in ways that at the moment we would describe as human, it is of course impossible to give any good estimate of how long this will take. But already computers have begun to take over occupations on a small scale—in teaching and medicine for example.

Still Crude

Present-day teaching machines are very crude, but those of the future will be able to adapt themselves rapidly to the needs of individual pupils, and they will have the merit of infinite patience.

In medicine, certain diagnoses are already much better made by machines than by the human specialist—for example, the detection of abnormalities in the electro-cardiogram.

Only when the four problems discussed above are solved will computers be able completely to replace the human doctor and examine a and communicate directly with the individual patient.

Alongside the progress in artificial intelligence we are also making striking advances in our understanding of how our own brain works. If we knew enough about the brain, we could immediately start to build a machine that works in the same way.

The human brain is the most efficient and complex information processing device known to man. Its intensive study is therefore likely to aid us enormously in constructing more sophisticated computers.

Doctrinaire Nationalism Contradiction of Terms

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

A common front of nationalists in Canada, determined to resist American encroachments and American habits of mind, has been advocated by Professor Gad Horowitz.

Professor Horowitz is a political scientist at McGill University who is moving next year to the University of Toronto. He will find less nationalism in his new environment than in his old.

And, what he will experience in Toronto will be the Canadian brand rather than the headier French-Canadian variety. But by the time classes open in the autumn it may not be so weak after all. At least not if Davie Fulton has his way, or Mike Starr.

Mr. Fulton has proposed that Canadians use their Canada Savings Bonds and other savings to buy out American investment in their country.

Mr. Starr has advocated a wage freeze and a price freeze. A more un-American act would be hard to imagine. A price freeze would be looked upon by Americans as a confiscation of their investments.

But before looking more closely at Professor Horowitz's two converts, let us ask why this nationalist venture is necessary. Professor Horowitz says that a "common front to halt the tide must be the program of all Canadians who do not want to be stuck with Americanism." And being "stuck with Americanism" means the "real and immediate" prospect of "total economic and cultural integration into American society."

This nationalist advocate is scornful of Canadian moderation, (this moderation will be the death of us), of Canadians' fear of nationalism, and of the ersatz kind of substitute "nationalism" represented by the whole Centennial bit and no doubt by such things and persons as John Fisher, the Grey Cup, Wayne and Shuster, the Mounties on the Hill, the Radisson serial and maybe the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

What has been done is phony. Why is it phony? Apparently because it is nationalism without a doctrine. Without a doctrine of nationalism we are searching for an image of nationalism, rather than for the real thing.

The doctrine of nationalism in the United States is liberalism, individualism, and participation or stock-market capitalism. What Professor Horowitz is recommending to Canadians especially to those on the left, is a fatal doctrine.

Checkers Champ

Another has been programmed to become a world master at checkers, learning from its own mistakes, and improving its game by playing against experts. One human champion who was defeated by it commented, "I have not had such competition from any human being since 1954, when I lost my last game."

"Who else will be going?" de Gaulle wanted to know.

"Well," said the ambassador, "we're hoping to get Prince Philip, but my government has instructed me to tell you that you'd be more than welcome if you wanted to come."

The French president, whose lack of self-confidence is known only to his intimates, immediately sat down and composed a letter to Brigitte Landres, who writes the advice column in France Soir. A translation follows:

"Dear Miss Landres:

"I am a 75-year-old head of state and I have always pride myself on running a good country and not pushing myself in where I am not wanted. Now I have been told by a friend that a party is being organized and that I will be welcome if I want to come. My feeling is that this is not a proper invitation and I do not mind admitting that I am hurt. Am I being oversensitive?"

(Name held on request.)

Then let the line form on the right! Davie Fulton will carry the banner. All that there money in them there Savings Bonds (Question: Where is the money to be used to buy back Canada from them there Americans. (Question: What would the Americans do with the money?)

This is of course mythology, not economics.

But it is also very instructive. It shows us once again, and I suppose we shall always have to relearn this lesson, that reformers and progressives can blow up a nice looking nationalist football, but it is the anti-reformer who will take the ball from him and run over top of him.

This is what happened in the United States to both the

'NO RESOURCES TO HELP THEM'Expert Urges End to Unwanted Parenthood

Social workers were urged to press for a "sane and sensible program" of planned parenthood.

Rosemary Hamilton of Vancouver, an experienced social worker, told the closing session of the Child Welfare League of America conference that this was the only solution to the growing problem of "unwanted children."

"It is high time as a profession that we mounted an all-out attack to ensure that no family should be forced by circumstances to bear and rear a child whom they do not want and can not adequately care for," she said.

Mrs. Hamilton, an ex-Victorian who has worked 20 years among poverty-stricken families, said she has seen mothers deteriorate year after year with the repeated strain of repeated, unwanted pregnancies.

"There have been no resources to help them and the vicious cycle of poverty sets in," she stated.

She explained that a mother in the urban slums with numerous small children to care for has no time to meet the needs of those who have reached puberty.

This resulted in a pattern of truancy among the older children, leading to dropping out of school and to delinquent and criminal behavior. Girls of 15 and 16 become pregnant and the pattern repeated.

This life pattern of poverty and conflict among poor families persists to the third and fourth generation, she said.

Mrs. Hamilton said many such family tragedies could be prevented if birth control methods were made more available to parents of such families.

She also advocated sterilization for people who so desired it.

Niel A. McDiarmid of the attorney-general's department, who with Dr. C. Hugh Boersman, gynecologist and obstetrician, participated in a panel discussion on the subject, noted that sterilization is not illegal with the individual's consent.

But doctors, he said, had balked in discussing in the open the ethical aspects of sterilization.

The more than 800 B.C. and Western U.S. social workers ended the conference with a feeling of optimism that tomorrow's child will have a greater opportunity to grow and mature as an individual.

But the delegates also left with the knowledge that many tough problems must first be solved. The basic one is finding ways and means of communicating knowledge to all levels of society.

Specialists in human behavior saw other problems.

These were the overcoming of the fears of established institutions—schools, churches that changes in methods of educating young people won't lead to a state of anarchy.

Parents who remain entrenched in "authority" was another.

Some social workers saw another problem. And that one involved themselves.

They saw many of their fellow workers as lagging behind public opinion in matters affecting mental health and lacking the courage to take a stand on matters of public interest.

Summit Set At Funeral

BONN (UPI)—President Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle and other western leaders who will attend Tuesday's funeral rites for former chancellor Konrad Adenauer will meet in an informal summit conference, West Germany's government sources said today.

The funeral will bring together the greatest assemblage of world leaders since the November, 1963, funeral of President John F. Kennedy. It will be the first Johnson-de Gaulle meeting since that time. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson also will be here for the Adenauer rites.

They were expected to meet while attending Bundestag memorial services here and the funeral at Cologne.

Tariff Talks Will Be Prolonged

GENEVA (Reuters) — Major Western trading nations conceded Wednesday they will be unable to conclude the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations by the self-imposed April 30 deadline.

The senior negotiators agreed to extend the deadline on a day-by-day basis into the early part of May, giving additional time for finding compromises on several key issues.

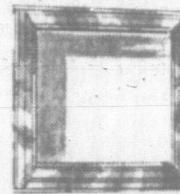

Chemicals, grains and steel were understood to be particularly controversial sections, with European Common Market being blamed for its bargaining partners for offering inadequate trade concessions.

The 53-country negotiations, launched four years ago on the initiative of the late U.S. president John F. Kennedy, aims at cutting import duties on industrial goods by a maximum 50 per cent and at liberalizing international trade in farm products.

SASKATCHEWAN CAR INSURANCE PLANEven Those at Fault Compensated

Saskatchewan is the only province in Canada where the victim of an accident is compensated whether he is to blame for the accident or not.

James O. Dutton, general manager of the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office, made this statement Wednesday in a brief to the Royal Commission on Automobile Insurance at Victoria Law Courts, of fault.

He appeared before the commission, by invitation, with colleagues in the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office.

Mr. Dutton's brief was read before Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, chairman, and commissioner Charles E. S. Walls.

He said field studies have shown that a marked majority of persons involved in accidents favor compensation irrespective of achievement in dollars."

The California committee added that "whether the successful experience in Saskatchewan would hold in other jurisdictions is a separate question."

The committee said Saskatchewan's insurance policy is feared as "monopolistic and bureaucratic," and must be premised on a thorough examination of all aspects of the highway authority.

Mr. Dutton said the Saskatchewan government insurance office was established as a crown corporation in 1944. It began operation in Regina May 1, 1945.

It provided for issue of a certificate of insurance for the operator of a vehicle and a separate certificate for the owner of a licensed vehicle.

"The act contains built-in precautions against unfounded claims," Mr. Dutton said.

He added that the number of claims incurred in the last four years were: 1962-63, 34,500; 1963-64, 42,200; 1964-65, 40,600; 1965-66, 43,900.

He said the insurance office employs its own claims adjusters and legal advisors.

"The cost of these departments is charged to expenses, and not to claims costs. From time to time, when independent adjusters or legal advisors are engaged, such costs are directly chargeable to the claim file as claim costs.

"All premiums under the Act are payable in cash at the time that a licensee is issued. This creates a substantial fund not required for immediate use, and these funds are invested in securities of the kind that insurance companies are permitted to invest in."

Answering questions from the commission, Mr. Dutton said the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office is not the highway authority.

"It has no powers to suspend the driver's licence or certificate of registration of any motorist. But it does have the power to make recommendations to the Highway Traffic Board that a driver's licence or certificate of registration should be suspended or revoked."

He said the Vehicles Act sets out a wide range of circumstances under which the board can suspend or revoke a driver's licence or certificate.

The hearing continues today.

Students Follow Faculty'TOTAL BOYCOTT' AT UNIVERSITY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students, following the lead of some members of the faculty, stayed away from Catholic University classes en masse today protesting the firing of a young priest-professor known for his liberal views toward moral theology and birth control.

"It looks like a general boycott," said one observer. "It looks pretty total. There are only one or two people in the streets and usually the streets are crowded."

The call for a boycott of classes by students was sounded Wednesday after the entire faculty of the school of sacred theology voted to go on strike until

Diabetic Defence Fails for Accused

A defence that diabetes caused symptoms of impairment was rejected by Magistrate J. A. Byers in Central Court, Wednesday when he sentenced Lester Crocker, 1259 Walnut, to 30 days for impaired driving.

A licence suspension of six months was ordered.

Earlier in the trial Magistrate Byers denied a defence motion for dismissal on the grounds that the man in the dock had not physically been pointed out as the accused. But the court ruled that he was referred to as the accused and that identification was good enough for the bench.

NOT AN EXPERT

The court also ruled against the defence request to have Dr. John Patterson considered an expert witness.

Magistrate Byers accepted

Women at Helm While Cabinet On Vacation

The women are starting to run the show at provincial cabinet meetings.

Two weeks ago, minister without portfolio Mrs. Grace McCarthy became the first woman in the province's history to chair a cabinet meeting and counter-sign all the cabinet orders as presiding officer.

And the cabinet orders released Tuesday show the signature of her colleague, Mrs. Patricia Jordan, as presiding minister of the cabinet sitting this week.

Normally, Premier Bennett presides but other ministers take turns at it when he's away.

The two women stepped in to fill the function during the session lull when a majority of ministers are out of town.

Hospital Team Starts Arriving Early in May

The vanguard of the Greater Victoria Hospital survey team will be in the city during the first week in May.

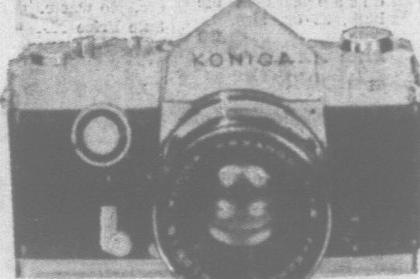

Mayor Hugh Stephen said Wednesday Dr. Harvey Agnew will arrive in Victoria at the end of this month ready to launch the survey the following week.

It is anticipated that a preliminary report on the need for acute bed care in the area will be ready six months later.

Cost of the survey has been set at $40,000 of which the provincial government will pay half.

Twin Concept For New Bank

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A bank for the little people of B.C. is still a valid objective of the Bank of British Columbia, according to its 38-year-old organizer Frank Trebell.

But he admits the BBC will be industry-oriented and will become expert in such basic B.C. industries as forestry, mining and fishing.

KENT

Trebell, recently given the task of putting a banking organization together while on loan from Yorkshire Financial Corp., said the two concepts are not inconsistent.

"Banks don't have only one objective. They are not just deposit-gatherers offering financial advice to individual clients," he said from his Vancouver office.

"But they also lend money to people, not just individuals, but to industrial corporations. And without industry nobody is going to have jobs."

Which is a familiar story to that point. What Mr. Trebell means is that the citizens of B.C. will all benefit by an organization that has all its resources available right here in the province, one which may be in a better position to help local industry than banks centred in Toronto or Montreal.

A good deal of the share capital will be of B.C. origin, it is expected, judging from the brisk level of inquiries regarding the public distribution coming up soon.

But further to that, Mr. Trebell points out that B.C. is a province trying to build secondary industry to create a more

Columbia Cellulose Profits Down

VANCOUVER (CP)—Profits of Columbia Cellulose Ltd. slumped sharply in the first quarter of 1967, shareholders were told Wednesday.

The company, which operates a large pulp mill at Prince Rupert, reported profits dropped to $107,290 in the first quarter compared with $616,006 in the same quarter of 1966. Sales volume remained about the same, $16,080,000 compared with $16,570,000 in the first quarter of 1966.

President Paul M. Marshall told the annual meeting that because of the sharply lower earnings there will be a minus share earnings position for common shareholders because preferred quarterly dividends of about $250,000 have to be paid.

Mr. Marshall said some of the company's financial difficulties were of a "non-repetitive nature, and others were of a kind that will take some time to correct."

Austria Cuts Bank Rate

VIENNA (Reuters)—Austria reduced its bank rate Monday by one-quarter per cent to 4½ per cent to avoid an increased inflow of foreign money.

A communiqué issued by the National Bank said this was a reaction to the reduction of bank rates in other European countries. Austria did not intend to stop the process of consolidation of its economy.

balanced economy, more diversified and more healthy.

"The basic objectives of a bank are to encourage economic prosperity in an area," he said.

This area is going to grow with the bank and vice versa. Long-range thinking will be in terms of the Pacific rim, the trading area that will ensure a prosperous future for B.C. industries as forestry, mining and fishing.

PITTSBURGH, WHEELING

Steel Companies Merger Hinted

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Pittsburgh Steel Co., the United States' 14th largest producer, was to issue a statement amid speculation of a merger with the financially-troubled Wheeling Steel Corp., ranked No. 10 in the industry.

In a series of developments Wednesday, the chief officer and three board members of Wheeling Steel resigned and trading of both firms' stock was suspended on the New York stock exchange.

Hunt Foods and Industries, Inc., Fullerton, Calif., meanwhile announced it had sold about 150,000 shares of its holdings in Wheeling Steel to Pittsburgh and to the Charles F. Kettering family interests of Dayton, Ohio.

Hunt, which had held about 11.3 per cent of Wheeling's outstanding shares, still retained 100,000 shares.

Any merger between the two firms would be the first significant one in the steel industry since before the Second World War. Combined the two companies would command total assets of about $600 million or about ninth in the industry.

MODEST PROFITS

Pittsburgh, which makes virtually the same products as Wheeling but is a larger producer of galvanized sheet, has had modest profits in recent years but not enough to declare dividends.

Wheeling, with two consecutive years of heavy losses, reported late Wednesday a first quarter loss of $160,000 on record first quarter sales of $78 million.

The company had a net loss of $4.6 million in 1965 and a $7.8 million loss last year.

FOREST LEADER

Get Story Across To Public

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's forest industry needs new methods of dealing with labor-management problems and better public relations, a logging executive says.

William D. Moore, past president of the Truck Loggers Association and chairman of the forestry advisory committee to the centennial festival of forestry, was critical of the industry's lack of communication with the general public.

The forest industry, he said in an interview, is "complex, large and awesome," and it takes years of hard telling and retelling to get its story across to the public.

"It takes sincere detailed explanation—a subject that I'm afraid the forest industry has only recently discovered in its dealing with the public."

Referring to last year's impossible demands and counter offers, nurtured in the spring by stubbornness and threats and finally decided in the late summer by a gunpoint dictum from government."

"It was agreed by one and all to be a poor way to run an outfit," he said.

Mr. Moore said there have been three major strikes and a lot of near misses in the industry in the last 20 years.

"Near misses are costly, too, he said.

"There are feverish arguments over months and months as to why labor needs more money and why management can't afford more money."

"These arguments, to a degree with mis-information and evasions of truth can cause irreparable harm to the continuity of year-to-year employer-employee relations."

Mr. Moore said negotiations can't be carried out in a "dream world of buddy-buddy".

The leaders of both sides are going to have to learn to understand each other's problems and stop talking so much to themselves and trying to justify themselves."

The executive said he has no magic formula for peace in the industry. There are plenty of trained, talented people already available to do the job but they can't do it unless "definite signs are shown by both parties' top command of their desire for an area of trust."

He said management must make the first move.

Habs' Provost Assigned To Stop Leafs' Big M

Hal Malone
LOOKS AT SPORTS

George Imlach reeks of the milk of human kindness whenever he contemplates referees, Canada's national hockey team, enemy players and typewriter jockeys.

His attitude toward these bothersome souls is reflected by an ancient parable.

Last autumn when the noble curator was preparing Toronto Maple Leafs for the rigors of the National Hockey League schedule, he turned to press attaches.

"You've heard about mules?" he asked, and was not deterred when a man asked if that is anything like an editor.

There was a man in Leaky Fauteu, Mr. Imlach began, who sold a mule to a mark in Mudville. The vendor gave explicit instructions how to handle the animal.

"You'll have no trouble with this mule," the first chap said, "if you treat him with affection and kindness and loving care."

Attention Precedes Loving Care

The buyer took the mule home. For two weeks he couldn't get it to respond. He treated it gently, with surpassing kindness. But the mule balked and did nothing but sulk.

Desperate, the new owner phoned the man he had bought the mule from in Leaky Fauteu.

"I'll be right over," the Leaky Fauteu man said. When he arrived in Mudville, the first thing he did was pick up a two-by-four. Then, with an overlapping Bobby Baun grip, he whacked the mule several times over its long, stumped head.

The man from Mudville was aghast. "Why the plank?" he asked. "You told me to handle the mule with kindness and affection and loving care."

"I know," the man from Leaky Fauteu said. "But first you have to get his attention."

The story isn't new, but neither is the cadre who told it.

Mr. Imlach reached for a Punch line: "People who bother me, that's how I talk about them. That's why I holler at referees. You have to get their attention."

Among people who bother Imlach are Carl Brewer, who shed the Maple Leafs for the Maple Leaf, and Rev. David Bauer, the Basilius priest who inspired the Canadian national team.

Brewer and Bauer Are Verboten

Imlach has never had any trouble concealing his admiration for either. When Brewer sought his release from Toronto to join the Bauer Brigade last winter, Imlach was honoured by authors.

Smoke coming out of his ears, Imlach proclaimed "there are two names I don't want to talk about now or ever—Brewer and Bauer."

Imlach's pique was fostered in the belief that the friendly reverend had induced Brewer to defect. In fact Brewer had made his decision to leave the pros long before he considered playing for Queen and flag. Brewer made the initial contact with Father Bauer.

Both men were stricken from Imlach's Valentine card-list when the Toronto hierarchy ultimately went over Imlach's bald dome and unfettered Carl from the Carlton Street Cashbox.

The lives of men in hockey are often inextricably linked, however. And while Mr. Imlach is not apt to send Fr. Bauer a bunch of posties today, it is an unalterable fact that the Maple Leafs might not be in the playoffs were it not for him.

Those 'Punch' Lines Irked Brian

Four winters ago when Fr. Bauer was putting together the National team one of the boys he coveted was Brian Conacher.

Tall, a good skater, with a hard shot, Conacher was also sought by the Maple Leafs. He was Lionel Conacher's son, who in Toronto the Good would not exactly hurt the box office.

Imlach and his subaltern, King Clancy, the blithe Vice-President in charge of Funny Stories, fed young Conacher their best lines, including "sign here." But like the mule, Conacher wouldn't give them his attention.

Finally he told them to scram, get out, take off, etc., and bolted the door. He registered as a freshman at Western University and planned to play football.

Enter Fr. Bauer. He is a master of the soft sell, sincere and straightforward. If he had not chosen to be a cleric, he would have made a great referee in the Vietnam argument.

"I want to play hockey," Conacher told him. "But I'm getting fed up with the pressure they've been putting on me."

No problem, said the padre. Why not play for Canada, get your education simultaneously, and then decide if you want to turn pro?

Conacher smiled and they shook hands.

You're Probably Right, Fr. Dave

He spent two years with the nationals before joining the Toronto organization. In 1965-66 he labored with Rochester, a Toronto subsidiary, and this season joined Imlach's Marauders.

Without his two goals Tuesday night, Imlach might have been planning his summer vacation rather than how to handle Toe Blake's Montreal Mules.

If the Leafs can open the morgue doors for the Canadians, each player on the winning side will take home $4,000. Nobody will appreciate the largesse more than Brian Conacher. On May 15 he will take a bride. —Susan Davis of Toronto.

It was suggested Wednesday to Fr. Bauer that Imlach would not have been so fortunate if somebody hadn't got Conacher's attention.

"Maybe," a man suggested, "Imlach will send you a Christmas card."

Fr. Bauer's answer was in the Ecumenical spirit his boss in Rome would have admired.

"I don't think," Fr. Bauer said, "that Punch could complain today."

CASSIUS 'NOT GOING TO MURDER AND KILL'

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay said today he will not wear an army uniform "under any circumstances."

Clay said to do so would be a denunciation of his Muslim religion.

"No, I am not going 10,000 miles from here to help murder and kill and burn another poor people simply, to help continue the domination of white slave masters over the darker people the world over," he told a press conference,

The 25-year-old boxer is scheduled for induction April 28 in Houston, Tex.

Royals Extend Lead; Romp Over Macs 8-2

SASKATOON (CP)—New Westminster Royals scored three unanswered goals in the third period and three more in the fourth to win 8-2 over Saskatoon Macs in their series will be played here Friday.

A crowd of 1,463 fans saw the Royals share in the scoring. For the Royals it was George Parrett, Wayne Goss, Larry Palanion, Ray Allegretto, Ray Wallis, Ron Pepper, George Watson and Ken Winzoki.

The first period ended 2-2, but the win gave the Royals a 3-1 lead in games. Fifth game in lead by the end of the second.

Montreal 9-5 Favorites To Sweep Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, already crippled at left wing, will face another obstacle down the left side when Frank Mahovlich steps onto the ice in the first game of the Stanley Cup finals tonight.

Montreal Canadiens' coach Toe Blake says he will probably use Claude Provost to shadow the big Toronto left winger in the best-of-seven series.

Toronto lost left winger Larry Jeffrey in the sixth and final game of the semi-finals against Chicago Black Hawks in Toronto Tuesday.

The fast-skating forward, one of the Leafs' top penalty killers, tore ligaments in his right knee while checking Chicago's Stan Mikita. He underwent surgery in Toronto Wednesday and is not expected to see action in the finals.

The injury could seriously hamper the Leafs' chances against the Canadiens, current 9-5 favorites to win the series.

But the loss of Jeffrey could also solve a problem of overstaffing at right wing for Toronto coach Punch Imlach.

FAVORED CONACHER

Imlach was forced to sit out captain George Armstrong during Tuesday's game in favor of rookie Brian Conacher, who scored two goals including the winner.

Armstrong was injured during the second game of the semi-finals and, although he was ready for action Tuesday, Imlach decided to leave Conacher in the right wing position with linemates Dave Keon and Mahovlich.

Conacher is a left winger, however, and Imlach will probably use Armstrong in his regular spot tonight and move the rookie to Jeffrey's position on a line with Jim Pappin and Peter Stempowski.

Meanwhile, Blake's plan to use his top shadow man against Mahovlich is by no means a new role for the 165-pound Montreal right winger. He has been used during his 12 seasons with the Canadiens to cover such stars as Bobby Hull of Chicago and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

Hull, usually short-tempered with shadows, has said Provost does the job but is offensively-minded as well, always looking for an opportunity to score.

The Canadiens have not used a specific player or a line to check Mahovlich during the regular 80-game National Hockey League schedule.

NEEDS WATCHING

"But the way he's been going lately makes us think we'll need Provost out there against him," Blake said.

Mahovlich was the Leafs' top producer against the Hawks, scoring three of their 18 goals and assisting on five.

Mahovlich's best playoff year was in 1963 when he scored four goals and added 11 assists. The Leafs won the Stanley Cup in 1962 with six goals and six assists in 12 games.

Although the Canadiens have a 15-game undefeated streak, the Montreal club is not taking the Leafs lightly.

ALWAYS TOUGH

Toronto is always tough because they play close-checking hockey," says Montreal captain Jean Beliveau. "The Leafs don't change much between the season and the playoffs and that's their advantage.

"But I think we're a better skating team over-all and will beat them with speed."

Montreal strongman John Ferguson also thinks the Leafs could be hard to beat.

"They won't forget last year's rout (Montreal won the semi-finals against the Leafs in four games) and we've got our work cut out to beat them. But I think we're ready. I know I am."

DRIVES IN WINNER

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, rookie Rod Carew drove in a ninth-inning single as Minnesota Twins and Dean Chance defeated Baltimore Orioles 3-2. Three home runs powered Cleveland Indians to a 4-1 victory over Kansas City Athletics. Washington's d'ou b'le header at Boston was rained out.

Ford was delighted with his performance. "It's been a long time hasn't it" he said, grinning.

Totems Grab Playoff Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seattle Totems took a one-goal lead by the end of the second period and then held on to edge Vancouver Canucks 3-2 and take a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven Western Hockey League final series Wednesday night.

Howie Hughes tipped a drive from the point at 12:17 of the second period to break a 2-2 deadlock and give Seattle the opening game in the Lester Patrick cup series.

The clubs battled to a 1-1 tie at the end of the first frame, Seattle took a 3-2 lead by the end of the second and the third went scoreless.

Earl Heiskala tied it up less than a minute later by flipping an end-over-end shot which went past Vancouver goalie Al Smith's legs.

FIGHT NIGHT FRIDAY

Harry Infuriated At Snub of Taylor

Friday is "fight night" in Victoria, but Harry Morris happens to be in a fighting mood today.

If he had the reach, the London Boxing Club coach would probably steer his best punches at a B.C. Boxing Association selection committee.

The committee this week named a B.C. team to compete in the combined Canadian championships and Pan-Am Games trials, scheduled for Montreal on May 19.

Morris is up-in-arms because the selection committee snubbed Victoria, and particularly Billy Taylor.

Chosen were Derek Austin, Frank Scott, Wayne Boyce, Dick Findlay, Fred Fuller, Colin Coleridge and Gord Sinclair, all from the greater Vancouver area.

BEST BET IN B.C.

Taylor, a muscular 190-pounder who came from Seattle to Victoria last fall to star at halfback for the football Steelers, is rated by Morris as "the best bet in B.C. for the Canadian heavyweight championship."

"And I should know," said Morris with another crisp jab, "because I was a heavyweight. I think he could win the title."

The selection committee uses the excuse Taylor is a "jaded immigrant." That's nonsense. I was only a British subject, and not a Canadian citizen, when they picked me to be on the Pan-Am Games' team in 1959."

Morris, who never did get to the '59 Games because of a

"There wasn't one coach on the selection committee. Granted, they did send a card around to all the coaches to ask for their views, but that still isn't the same as being on the committee."

Another committee decision that "leaves me wondering," said Morris, is the selection of two fighters from one class. Both Findlay and Fuller compete in the 139-pound class and both will make the trip to Montreal.

Various B.C. coaches, including some from the mainland, are expected to meet before Friday's 14-bout card at the Club Tango to discuss the B.C. team choices. Presumably, they may send a strong letter of protest to BCBA president Sid Greenwood.

Taylor is featured in the main event of Friday's card. Other London Club scappers scheduled to appear include Harold Handlen, Les Vegas, Gary Van Buskirk, Jim O'Neil, Ron Way, Doug Way, Craig Sequin, Len Glandfield, Alan Ranger, Doug Andrews, Bob Allan, Jim Willott and Mike Miller.

First bout is at 8 p.m.

Penalty Shots Decide Spots In Boot Semis

Victoria's rivals in the Pacific Coast Soccer League's semi-final playoffs have been decided and the pennant-winning O'Keefes may have to face North Shore Luckies without the services of their top goal-scorer.

The semifinal battle is scheduled Saturday at Macdonald Park, starting at 2 p.m.

Luckies were forced to face O'Keefes when they dropped a 3-2 decision to Vancouver Firefighters in overtime Wednesday night at Vancouver.

The game was played to decide third and fourth positions in league standings — and the question of who plays whom in the semi-finals this weekend. The two teams had tied for third place in regular league play.

Tom Millar gave Firemen a 1-0 lead at the 29 minute mark but John Bruce tied the score for North Shore with 15 minutes left in regulation time. Neither team could score again in the overtime session (30 minutes).

DUEL OF PENALTIES

To finally resolve the deadlock, the teams took turns shooting penalty kicks. Both missed on the first attempts and both scored on the second. Then John Bruce missed on North Shore's third shot, while Steve Djorich netted his third shot to give the Firemen a victory, which will go into the record books as a 3-2 win.

Firefighters will now meet second-place Columbus in one semi-final in Vancouver Saturday night.

O'Keefes may have to play without the services of Jim Menzies, the speedy Scottish forward who topped the team in scoring with 12 goals during the regular 21-game schedule.

PULLED MUSCLE

Menzies suffered a pulled leg muscle in an exhibition game with Victoria Juniors last Saturday.

The injury is a recurring thing with Menzies, who suffered similar injuries in Scotland. Coach Frank Greay said whether or not Menzies plays Saturday may be a "last-minute" decision.

Although the league semifinal is scheduled this weekend, winners will have to wait exactly a month to meet in the sudden-death playoff for the league championship — scheduled May 22 at Vancouver's Callister Park.

Major delay will be caused by the staging of the Kennedy Cup tournament in Vancouver May

THAT MAN has every right to be in on the CGIT baby sitting course sponsored for St. Aidan's Church by the Victoria Jayettes. He is Robert Noble of the Naval Fire Service and he has instructed the girls in first aid. The lady demonstrating the proper way to hold a tot is Mrs. Jack Schaddelee. Girls in the picture are, left to right, Bonnie James, Laurie Frederick, Ginny Hind, Sheila Pinkney, Myra Baird, Debbie Mason. Course, which ends next Tuesday, calls for attendance one night a week for four weeks.

LIMITS KEPT ON INSURANCE

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachern told the Commons Wednesday that federal care legislation will not be changed to permit an expanded role for commercial insurance carriers.

Mr. MacEachern was replying to NDP Leader Douglas, who said the point had been left in doubt.

Private carriers would be limited to collecting and paying accounts on behalf of the provincial authority, the health minister said.

'DIGNITY OF DYING AT HOME WITH FAMILY'

Convict in Freedom Plea

NEW YORK (AP)—A convict with terminal cancer has appealed to Governor Nelson Rockefeller to commute his one-year prison term and permit him to spend his remaining time with his wife and four children.

"I'm guilty," William Kane, the 30-year-old prisoner, said. He is serving time in a prison hospital for a $30 stickup.

"But I can't understand why I must serve a life sentence for my crime," he added. "It's only a year's sentence, but that may be more than I have left."

Kane said he hoped the governor would permit him "the dignity of dying at home with my family."

Kane's weight has dropped to 160 pounds from 195 as cancer ravages the six-footer's right leg and has spread to his intestines.

One Man's Trust Melts 'Prison' Walls

By TERRY JIZZARD
Times Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER—John Young has this novel theory about kids.

The 45-year-old high school principal believes that if you treat them as human beings, they'll act like human beings. Nonsense?

Not—if—Campbell River Senior Secondary School is anything to go by.

In the two years since the greying French-Canadian took over, the school has become a model on which future education could well be shaped.

The accent here is on freedom with a capital F.

Sports Beard

Where else can students be found wandering around sporting a beard and carrying the latest issue of Playboy?

Or young boys, their hair down to their shoulders, walking side-by-side with attractive girls in min-skirts?

Certainly not in the average school, which Mr. Young describes as—"like prison . . . the principal is the warden, the teachers are guards."

To dispel the prison image, Mr. Young began by giving the senior matriculation students—the equivalent of first year university—the same privileges they would enjoy at university.

Numbering some 25, they have their own common room where they can smoke, drink coke, and play cards if they wish.

Classes are not compulsory for these students.

Secondly, the school's top 10 students were named senior scholars. Along with the title went the freedom to decide for themselves what classes they would attend on a purely voluntary basis.

Upwards of 30 students now enjoy this privilege.

Most of the remaining 220 students have been named Subject Scholars—a handle which entitles them to miss certain classes while compulsorily attending others.

Explains Mr. Young, who holds a Bachelor of Commerce from UBC and a masters degree in education: "We have tried to make the kids like school."

"We have stopped bugging them with unnecessary rules. We want them to assert their maturity and independence—to develop their minds."

"Too many educators—by tradition mostly—have never respected their students."

"Every citizen has a right. Students at school have certain rights."

Life His Own

A student's life is his own. The overwhelming majority are wonderful kids. Teenagers today are no worse than I was when I was a kid."

Of the system he says: "Schools don't provide students with enough opportunity to find out who they are. We just require these kids to be decent human beings. We trust them."

"The kids know we trust them."

The truth of this last statement can be readily attested to.

Despite the limitless opportunities for loafing around, the youngsters seldom take advantage of it.

The common room is seldom used for card games and playing hookey is unheard of.

Explained student council president, Peter Paquette, 17: "If we skip a class it's because we happen to be ahead in that particular subject."

"Life's a challenge," he asserts.

His bushy red mane provoked comment at first, but like mini skirts and long hair is now taken for granted.

Said 17-year-old Grade 12 student Marney Sommers: "It's amazing how your attitude to school changes when you're treated as a human being."

"Instead of wasting time bucking the system you go along with it."

"There are no petty rules to break so you don't play around trying to break them. Most of the kids realize this is being done for their benefit and they appreciate it."

Four Rules

The four-basic rules governing the school are: No smoking (with the exception of senior matriculation students); No truancy; No loafing in class, and No irresponsible behavior.

First offenders are given a stern warning.

Second offenders are asked to leave.

Though the latter treatment seems harsh, only one student had to leave.

Explains the stocky, well-groomed principal: "Because we respect them, the students respect us. For this reason we have little trouble with rebels. "We can get on with the job of teaching without the usual petty hindrances."

An NDP candidate in the 1963 federal election, Mr. Young (full name Joseph Aurele—"but call me John") studied at the Sorbonne in France for a year, was a Colombo Plan education expert among Dyak head hunters in Sarawak for three years and before coming here was principal at a high school in the Okanagan.

In addition he has travelled extensively and can name the best eating places in most major cities from Paris to Hong Kong.

"Life's a challenge," he asserts.

Street Dance Scheduled For July 1

CHEMAINUS—Teen Town Club will organize a Mardi Gras style street dance here as part of the Dominion Day celebrations.

Chemainus Rotary Club will run a salmon barbecue and the local Western Horsemen Riding Club will sponsor a junior horse show.

These are just a few of the events planned to make July 1 a big centennial event this year.

Chemainus Rod and Gun Club will organize a fishing derby, and a repeat highlight will be a parade and crowning of a Dominion Day queen and her princesses.

Linda Allen is secretary of the Celebrations Committee and Jack Jameson is treasurer.

A chairman will be appointed at the next meeting April 25.

Catering will be looked after by Chemainus Hospital and Chemainus Legion Ladies' Auxiliaries.

"Instead of wasting time listening to what we already know, we attend another class in which we may be blind."

"Either that or we go to the library and study on our own. It's a really good system."

"The teachers treat us as equals. We respect them and they respect us."

One of the few students taking advantage of the beard-growing freedom is 18-year-old Grade 12 student Duane Crawford.

He explained: "I grew it last year for beard-growing contest. After that I just kept it."

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Man Drowns, Friend Fined

NANAIMO—Frank Dushenka, 40, was fined $500 today for operating a vessel while impaired.

Magistrate Stanley Wardill also ordered that Dushenka be prohibited from operating a vessel for three years.

He ordered that the fine be paid in monthly installments of $100, beginning May 20.

Dushenka was charged following a boating mishap Wednesday which claimed the life of Ernest Miltton Dornfield, 41. Dornfield is officially listed as missing and presumed drowned.

Dushenka told the court today that Dornfield had stood up in the 14-foot boat they had rented from a Nanaimo marina and said "this is the end" and jumped into the water.

He said he searched until dark and then returned to the marina.

The court was told that Dushenka fell into the water himself at the marina. Police were called when he told of his companion's disappearance.

CHÉMAGUS — Ruth Young, 13, of Willow Road, Chemainus, suffered concussion Wednesday evening when thrown heavily from her horse.

She is in Chemainus General Hospital where her condition is "satisfactory."

Ruth was riding her horse Pil in Fullers Lake Park.

She was coming off gravel onto the pavement when the horse stumbled.

Pil was scared when she tripped and bolted, throwing Ruth to the ground.

NORTH COWICHAN — Enthusiasm is running high to promote juvenile hockey in the district when the municipality's centennial ice arena is built near Chemainus later this year.

Over 100 people attended a special meeting at Crofton community centre this week when Cowichan Valley Minor Hockey Association elected its first executive.

Tom Campbell, Chemainus, is president and other officers are Earl Morris, Duncan, first vice-president; Del Bertrand, Ladysmith, second vice-president; Carey Adams, Crofton, secretary, and Roy Ray, Saltair, treasurer.

The new hockey league territory will extend from north of the Malahat to Ladysmith and boys 8 to 18 may join.

DUNCAN — Dr. Joseph Pawlowski has been named honorary chairman of the Retarded Children's Association Flowers of Hope program in conjunction with Mother's Day.

The Duncan campaign will take place May 14 to 20.

In accepting the chairmanship, Dr. Pawlowski said: "Our goal this year is $3,595. We believe all citizens of the district will want to help us raise this amount."

last year's queen Bonnie Lambert, 17, princess Judy Larkin, 14, and princess Gail Wilkinson, 12.

Who-Who Making Beep-Beep?

DUNCAN — Local police are sticking to their story ... the beep noises reported as coming from unidentified flying objects are in fact coming from owls.

The official theory is discounted by local UFO devotee Vern Stanley-Jones.

He is convinced the beep signals are being transmitted by an electronic device.

"It could never have been picked up by the carrier wave of a ham radio set if it was an owl," he said.

The nightly beeping noises were first reported by Chris and Mark Dochterman, 12-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Dochterman, Cowichan Lake Road.

"We could hear it distinctly," said Mark.

He said the source transmitted a precise number of beeping sounds per second.

No clues were found when Mr. Stanley-Jones led a search of the area.

A Duncan police official said the noises were almost certainly coming from small barn owls. The beep noises were only being heard at night and started and stopped as the listeners moved into or out of the bush.

Mr. Stanley-Jones says the Dochterman incident is identical to one at Hollyburn, North Vancouver, last June.

The police verdict then was also — an owl.

But the curator of Vancouver zoo said the particular type of owl suspected did not live in the Hollyburn area.

Pachena Chieftain's Heir To Battle Home Shortage

By HUMPHREY DAVY

Kenneth Jones, heir to the hereditary chieftain of the famous Pachena Indians at Port Renfrew, is proving to be an adept planner and businessman.

Ever since his appointment as deputy chief of the band a year ago, he has been in charge of planning and developing a new subdivision on the reserve to alleviate a housing shortage.

And in addition, he has prepared and submitted a plan to the Indian affairs branch at Duncan to make room for the reserve lands revenue producing.

"He's my right-hand man," said his elderly father, Chief Charles Jones, one of the most respected citizens in the logging and fishing community. "He's treasurer, secretary, he's all."

The chief, a former outstanding fisherman and sealer, is in his late eighties.

The 25-year-old deputy's

plan calls for the establishment on the reserve of trailer and camp sites, a marina and the construction of cottages for rental to non-Indians.

The revenue received from these sources would be used to provide new homes to members of the band and to upkeep and maintain existing houses.

Indian department officials are impressed with the commercial scheme and are considering an application for a grant to start the project.

Mr. Jones bases the success of his proposed commercial project on Port Renfrew becoming a major recreational centre in the near future.

"This area has a big recreational potential," he said. "Apart from fishing, people are now coming here to boat and hike. They want to get away from the cramped recreational areas near urban centres."

He noted that as the reserve is situated at the mouth of the San Juan and Gordon Rivers, its location was ideal for recreation.

"If they ever re-open the west coast trail from Bamfield to Port Renfrew there will be a big demand from camping and motel accommodations in this area," he said. "We have the land to provide some of these facilities."

SHORTAGE

He said there would be no difficulty in renting cottages to non-whites as there is already a shortage of homes for miners and loggers.

Mr. Jones who is in charge of developing a new subdivision on the reserve, said only 22 per cent of his people have adequate housing.

Request Rejected for Aid On Brain Research Project

GANGES — The department of education has turned down a request by Gulf Islands school board for a grant to assist a private research project into brain growth among young children.

The grant-in-aid was requested for Dr. R. B. Bourdillon of Salt Spring Island who is working with a group of parents to study brain growth in children from birth to six years.

The study is aimed at assisting development of full potential intelligence in adult life.

Said board member James Campbell: "This situation is unique."

"It would be a pity not to have more work done along these lines."

"Dr. Bourdillon is a competent person with a truly scientific approach and will keep appropriate records. It would be sad if the board did not help out in some way."

The board will investigate other possible avenues of assistance for the former Oxford don.

4 V.I. APPEARANCES PLANNED BY STRACHAN

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan has begun an annual post-legislative tour of the province which will include four engagements on Vancouver Island, one of them a confrontation with the rebel wing of his caucus.

He will speak in Parksville, Saturday, in Victoria May 3 at a Victoria Labor Council meeting, and in Nanaimo May 18.

On May 13 he will attend a caucus of the 16 NDP MLAs in Port Alberni which may produce some fireworks.

Adjudicator To Perform

DUNCAN — Among performers at a concert to raise funds to aid local music students will be Willard Schultz of Seattle, adjudicator of the Cowichan Music Festival for the past two years.

Cowichan School Board has agreed to give free use of the senior secondary school auditorium for the May concert.

Other performers will include Heather Dougan of Cobble Hill and Alma Colk of Duncan, both former music festival winners who are studying at the University of B.C. faculty of music.

Proceeds will provide interest-free loans to students taking music training in a recognized school or college.

Unionists Back School Referendum

The Victoria Labour Council voted Wednesday night to endorse the $13.9 million Greater Victoria school referendum May 23.

At the same time, council asked its 70 affiliated unions to support the referendum.

School board chairman Peter Burn told delegates the referendum should take care of educational facility needs until 1970.

The province will pay $6.5 million of the total.

He said it is essential to keep up with standards of education.

If the referendum is defeated, there will be shifts in many schools in September. Another vote could not be held until six months later.

In another matter, the labor council reiterated previous policy of favoring publicly-owned ambulance services.

A letter was received from the Victoria and Oak Bay firefighters union saying its members are "disturbed" at reports city council may switch from the fire department ambulance service to a private one.

Other business included:

- Endorsement of a request by the International Pulp Sulphite union at Harmac to uphold the contractual union shop clause, subject of several injunctions and possible suspension of workers;

- Heard from the CLC that it has "no connection with or control over" building trades councils in Canada because they are chartered from the AFL-CIO in Washington;

- Full support for a single United Appeal encompassing all charities in Victoria, a position taken several years ago;

- A request to Ottawa that a federal bookstore be established in Victoria, similar to the one in Vancouver;

- Endorsement of the action by the International Woodworkers of America concerning allegations of extortion involving certain workers and supervisors at a local mill. The RCMP is investigating the matter.

Fishermen 'Still Solid' On Strike

The trawler strike on the B.C. coast "is still solid," an official of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union told Victoria Labour Council delegates Wednesday night.

The strike is in its fifth week and includes several vessels in Victoria, although most are in Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

Union organizer Bert Ogden said trawler crews want a 20-year unwritten gentlemen's agreement on sharing of the catch put in writing as well as provision of compensation coverage.

So far, 25 owners have signed an agreement on terms along these lines.

He reviewed the strike, including an attempt by the business agent of the B.C. Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, a CLC affiliate in Prince Rupert, to get strike breakers through a UFAWU picket line.

This resulted in a CLC official directing the Deep Sea union official not to cross picket lines and not to threaten use of injunctions.

This was confirmed by E.T. Staley, president of the B.C. Federation of Labour and regional vice-president of the CLC.

In Victoria, pickets are posted at the foot of Yates Street where two affected trawlers are tied up.

Mr. Ogden addressed the labor council meeting as a guest because the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union is not affiliated with the Canadian Labour Congress, which charters local labor councils.

Later, Mr. Staley said "he simply came and wanted to explain the situation."

Council president Jack Groves said although some unions are not in the CLC, "we're not going to bring them back into the congress unless we show some signs of co-operation, especially in difficult times, to show them the benefits of belonging to groups of affiliated unions."

'Let Judges Interrogate The Accused'

GORDON TELLS NEWSMEN

'Defence Policy Needs Hard Look'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — When the NORAD agreement comes up for renewal in 1968 Canada should take a long hard look at its position and it may decide to withdraw, Privy Council President Walter Gordon suggested in a speech to the National Press Club here Wednesday.

"In these circumstances it may well be the better part of wisdom for a small nation like our own to reconsider its whole position—rather than increasing our defence expenditures proportionately with those of the United States and Soviet Union," said Mr. Gordon.

SUCCESSFULLY completing recruit training in the RCMP is Third Class Constable W. Kuebler, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Kuebler of 2089 Prior Street, Victoria. Const. Kuebler has been posted to Manitoba.

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Paul Gilbert, director of the Montreal police department, Wednesday recommended that Canada adopt a French legal system whereby judges preside over the interrogation of accused persons before formal court proceedings are started.

Mr. Gilbert also said that "preventive detention" is a sign of the times and a vital need in a forward-moving province to protect the public from the possibly harmful effects of demonstrations.

He was addressing a continuing royal commission inquiry into the administration of justice in Quebec.

The French system of questioning the accused and deciding whether there is sufficient evidence to continue to detain him would, if adopted, relieve police of the often heavy responsibility of deciding whether certain persons, in borderline cases, should be held.

RESPECT LAWS

In addition, judges would be sure to respect laws and procedures to make sure that justice was done.

Another possibility was a "mixed system" whereby public prosecutors would handle the questioning and make the decisions.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Gilbert told the commission Quebec is experiencing something called "a quiet revolution" but, he said, "there is a fringe that doesn't want it to be quiet."

"It wants violence."

Preventive detention—"the temporary removal of ringleaders to avert an impending crime or riot"—was not necessary a few years ago.

But today it is, he said, even though it means subordinating individual freedom to the general welfare.

Sailor Promises To Replace Vase

A sailor who threw a stolen vase away but promised to make restitution was fined a total of $50 in central court, Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to two charges of theft under $50.

An RCMP officer told the court that Francis McEntee of HMCS Columbia took the $20 vase and three ashtrays from a Ganges hotel and later took a picture worth $35 from a resort cabin.

The sailor disposed of the vase but has returned the other articles.

HOME GARDENOff with the Heads Of All Daffodils

By HILDA BEASTALL

The recent rain will no doubt write finis to hundreds of lovely daffodils which have given us pleasure over the past four or five weeks.

Old varieties with thin textured blossoms have not remained long in perfect condition, but the more modern varieties are better constituted to withstand weather.

Their blooms are more solid, or heavier, and the stems sturdy—a bane to hold them firm in the spring winds. Hilda

However, during the past week or so we have seen the green seed pod swelling just behind each flower, and knew the time would soon be here when every blossom head must be snapped off.

The rain has helped to further mature the blooms, giving them brown edges, so that now we do not regret having to remove them.

The reason for this "off with their heads" attitude is to enable the daffodil bulbs to build up a reserve of food in time to produce within the bulb the flowers for next spring.

Only the old flower head with its green seed pod is removed, leaving the long green stem to add its quota of food.

If the bulb feeding was not done earlier in the season, a scattering of bulb fertilizer (6-10-10) or a general complete fertilizer (6-8-6) should be made now, and lightly watered in.

The daffodil leaves must be left on as long as they are a good green color. After they become limp, there is no further work being done by them, and they can be knotted or tied if only a few groups are in a border.

They should not be removed until quite dry, usually in June, when they may easily be gathered and burned. Pulled away from the bulbs earlier, the bulb scales will surely be damaged.

Remember all daffodils are narcissi, and these few hints apply to all kinds of the genus narcissus.

CIA Probe Demanded

LONDON (AP)—Labor members of Parliament have demanded an investigation into allegations that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had intervened in British Guyana—now Guyana—to overthrow the government of Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan, a leftist, in 1964. Prime Minister Wilson, sidestepping the demands, said that Guyana now is self-governing and the British government had no responsibility.

Canada's Oldest?

GREY IS STARTING TO SHOW in his dark coat, but he is alert—maybe a little bit sassy—and his well-covered ribs attest to the fact he still eats like a horse. But he IS a horse! Yes, but a most unusual one in that he could be the oldest one in Canada—38 years. He is Air Pilot, a gelding show horse living on the "Spring Ridge" farm of Herschell Smith, 7247 East Saanich Road, which formerly was the home of the late Dr. Norman James, a retired veterinarian, who bought him in 1941 on the prairies. When Mrs. James sold the farm after her husband's death, there was a proviso that Air Pilot should live out his days there. His custodian is Frank Rafford, shown with him in the picture, who boasts that when the horse was a venerable 22 years of age, he won the Western Canadian high jump championship at Calgary—six feet four inches. "And he can still kick up his heels," says Frank. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

When Can Wife Walk Out? Legal Experts to Answer

When can a wife leave her husband?

What should you consider when buying a house?

Are you responsible for damage done by your children?

These are just three of the 20 questions that will be formally answered by four city lawyers at a public forum in McPherson Playhouse Tuesday night.

And members of the audience will be able to put any other question that bothers them to the legal experts.

The forum, which will be broadcast live by CJVI, a co-sponsor of the event along with the Victoria Times and the Victoria Bar Association, will start at 8:30 p.m.

LAST MINUTE

Admission tickets for the forum are completely gone but it is expected some seats may be available at the last minute.

A list of 20 formal questions to the panel has been drawn up and will be answered during the first half of the program.

During the intermission the audience will be able to write other questions on cards that will be supplied, and these sifted and as many as possible answered during the second half of the program.

Mayor Urges Yes Vote On Referendum

Mayor Hugh Stephen today called for a "yes" vote on the $13 million schools referendum on May 13.

But he said his endorsement of the school board's aims did not mean that he approved the provincial-municipal cost sharing arrangement now existing.

"Our position has to be that while we complain about the formula we cannot deny the necessity," he said.

The mayor told the city's finance committee to make a special note of the distribution of costs in the new school budget.

"The local levy to be picked up by municipalities is $8,489,000 while the provincial government pays $6,351,738—or about 38 per cent of the costs," he said.

OTHER QUESTIONS

Here is a list of other questions that will be answered Tuesday night:

Are breathalyzer tests now compulsory?

Should a husband and wife always own property in their joint names?

What size of estate bears death taxes?

Are parents liable for their minor children's contracts?

Is a homeowner responsible for a child injured on his property?

What is the difference between a mortgage and an agreement for sale?

What happens if a person dies without a will?

What are your rights if you are arrested?

SIMPLY DEBTS

How can you handle your own case in Small Debts Court?

How do you incorporate a small business?

How do you recover damages when injured in a car accident?

When are you guilty of careless driving?

Can you prevent a 17-year-old daughter from marrying?

How can a lawyer defend a man whom he knows is guilty?

What happens when a teenage boy injures someone with his father's power-boat?

Who owns the furniture when a husband and wife break up?

What is the new Consumer Protection legislation?

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Blue Max, the highest decoration in the German Air Force, in the First World War, inscribed with the French words: Pour Le Mérite? L.N.

A. We can only surmise. The Encyclopedia Britannica does not mention the Blue Max in its chapters on medals and decoration. But it does refer to a German order, Ordre Pour Le Mérite. This was founded in 1667 by Frederick of Prussia when electoral prince and was called Order of Generosity. In 1740, Frederick the Great renamed the decoration Ordre Pour Le Mérite and there were two divisions, military and civil. Frederick had a French tutor and loved French literature. Perhaps this accounts for the French name for the order.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be handled confidentially.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve commercial or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to value items on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

CITY SUPPORT LIKELY FOR TREATMENT CENTRE

Victoria will probably donate $10,000 over a two-year period towards the cost of a burns treatment centre at St. Joseph's Hospital.

But council wants more details on total costs and the general fund-raising drive before it gives final approval to the special grant.

When built, the treatment centre will be named after late Mayor Alfred Toone. It is a Centennial project of the Victoria Labour Council of which Mr. Toone was secretary for many years.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he felt a substantial sum should be donated by the city in order that the late mayor might have a worthy memorial.

ALL SOUTH ISLAND

Cable Failure Cuts Off Power

Every household on southern Vancouver Island was blacked out shortly after noon today following a power failure on the mainland.

Only essential services—including hospitals and major businesses—received power during the 35-minute blackout.

Even many traffic lights were out, causing minor jams at important junctions.

The shutoff came at 12:20 p.m. while most key Hydro personnel were away at lunch.

It wasn't until 12:55 p.m. that normal service was resumed.

Exact cause of the failure was still not known at press time.

But a Hydro spokesman said it has been traced to the cable running between Tsawwassen on the mainland and Stratford station at Crofton.

ESSENTIAL SERVICE

Emergency power for essential services was provided by sub-stations dotted around the Island.

It was not known exactly how many households and businesses suffered from the power loss.

But indications were that everyone on the main circuit was affected, including Sidney, Brentwood and possibly areas further north.

WIDE AREA

It is believed to be one of the biggest blackouts in recent years.

The Hydro building switchboard in Victoria was jammed solid as hundreds rang in to report the loss of power.

Radio and TV stations were off the air during the blackout.

Lights went out in many downtown businesses, though major stores were apparently not affected.

Duncan and communities north are fed from Campbell River and were not affected.

Pacific Western Airlines is one of five regional air carriers granted extra charter rights to help get people to Expo this summer.

The regular carriers will not be able to handle the heavy passenger demand," said PWA president R. H. Laird, who pointed out that permits are valid only this year.

The mayor added that with so many figures "bandied about" the impression was sometimes left that the provincial government paid 50 per cent of school costs.

"I think that impression should be corrected," he said.

NOT CRITICAL

"I do not make this statement in any critical sense," he said. "I make it just to put things in their right perspective. I just want the people to realize that the cost position is inequitable."

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer,
If I want to use top stitching about $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch from my seams to look like the popular welt seaming, how do I go about it when the pattern doesn't show it? Also, any clue about keeping top stitching even and avoiding that pulled, bias look between the stitching line and edge or seams of garment will be appreciated. Mrs. D. W.

If you intend to top stitch seams where the pattern doesn't show this detail, be sure to cut the seam allowance instead of the usual $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch. The effect you want of a welt seam wouldn't be the same without stitching through the seam allowance as well as the top layer of fabric.

Here's a great tip for keeping stitching straight and avoiding that pulled look, which one of my former students came up with. Take a piece of cardboard from hem tape (or whatever), and cut a two-inch slash straight down from the long struggle with the curves.

side, the exact width of the stitching you are using. Then cut a wedge out of this by cutting $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch wider at the top to nothing at the end of your slash. You will have a "V" type cut out with one straight edge.

Place the long edge of the cardboard along the seamline or the outer edge of garment. Carefully and firmly hold your fingers on each side of this wedge and allow your presser foot to ride on the cardboard while the needle stitching your fabric right next to the straight edge of the wedge. When you have stitched to the end of your slash (two inches), keep needle down and raise presser foot and slide the cardboard away and continue.

The whole secret is not only are you getting a perfect guide but holding the cardboard firmly as you stitch is preventing the top layer of fabric from slipping forward. This works perfectly on straight stitching.

Sorry, you'll still have to straight down from the long struggle with the curves.

Never throw water on burning grease or fat! Just douse with soda to smother flames and prevent splattering. Always keep a package of Cow Brand Soda near the stove and in car glove compartment for emergencies.

Growing With Victoria —

DEAR ABBY . . .

Why Not 'Get With It' Folks?

By ABIGAIL VAN-BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I know you are not a fashion editor, but maybe you can help me: There is continual friction between me and my husband over the length of my skirts. I will be 50 this year and have four grown children and four grandchildren.

I have a nice figure, work in an office and wear my skirts to the middle of my kneecap. My husband, who is a business executive, says I am too modest and old fashioned, that I should "get with it" and wear my skirts shorter like the fashionable women do.

I think teenagers look cute with short skirts, but after 40 a woman should have a little more dignity about her.

Should I shorten my skirts to please my husband? Or should I leave them the way they are?

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school student. Last weekend my very best girl friend slept over. The day after she left, my mother missed about $12 worth of her good cosmetics. I didn't want my mother to think my friend had taken them so I said I had "borrowed" them and left them somewhere.

Now I am being punished, but I would almost rather take the punishment than have my mother think my girl friend was a thief. Abby, I turned the house upside down looking for those cosmetics, and they are just gone!

Should I tell my mother I had nothing to do with it, and it just had to be that girl? Or should I take the punishment and let it go?

BEING BLAMED

DEAR MAD: Please advise the doctor.

Then retain a lawyer to tell your neighbor that you expect repayment and (possibly) punitive damages.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BE-

WILDERED DAD" IN BOUL-

DER: Let him find the next job himself. Every time you carry a strong, healthy person who can walk, you contribute to his weakness.

MAY BRIDE-ELECT

Party Duo for Miss Taylor

A pair of shower curtains has been held to honor bride-elect Miss Elizabeth Taylor, whose marriage to Jim Forward takes place on May 5. Pink was the color theme used to decorate the Dalhousie Street home of Mrs. A. H. Stepney when she entertained at a shower. An arrangement of pink and white freesia, flanked with candles and miniature parasols, centred the refreshment table. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Robert W. Taylor, and her grandmother, Mrs. R. H. Taylor of Vancouver.

A gaily decorated pink box contained gifts from Mrs. M. D. Mayhew, Mrs. D. Elford, Mrs. G. Joy, Mrs. E. Peden, Mrs. Violet Laing, Mrs. T. Padgin, Mrs. Agnes Kennedy, Mrs. J. Gough, Mrs. A. W. Johns, Mrs. J. McCallum, Mrs. C. T. Overman, Mrs. C. Powell, the Misses Jane Padgett, Linda Neville, Linda Ross-Jones, Shirley Vaio, Sandy Alexander and Diane Haywood.

The bride-elect's chosen attendants, the Misses Shirley Vaio, Diane Haywood and Linda Nevile, held a shower for Miss Taylor in Miss Nevile's Larkdowne Road home. Corsages were presented to the honor guest and her mother.

The bridesmaids' gift, a gaily decorated wicker basket, contained the gifts from Mrs. R. Brachet, Mrs. W. Neville, Mrs. D. Macdonald, Mrs. R. Emmerson, Mrs. J. Fehler, Mrs. D. Evans, Mrs. E. Haywood, the Misses Patsy Pye, Sharon Emerson, Lynn Small, Pat Evans, Lynda Ross-Jones, Dez Schroeder and Marsha Haywood.

Youth Not the Same Say Debate Winners

Through debate, members of the Arbutus Toastmistress Club decided that the youth of today is not facing up to the challenges of the world as did their forebears.

Subject of the debate at the recent meeting in the Blue Room was "Resolved that Today's Youth is Facing Its Challenges as Well as Pioneer Women."

Speakers for the evening were Mrs. H. J. Wende and Mrs. C. Dowling, who were introduced by Mrs. George Love.

Also taking part in the program were Mrs. I. Hogarth, Mrs. H. Butt, Mrs. L. Halstrom, Mrs. H. L. Brens, Mrs. P. Small, Mrs. W. G. Smith, Miss Tanga Irvine, Mrs. R. S. Walls, and Mrs. A. N. Reid.

General evaluator Mrs. P. Small awarded the Spur to Mrs. L. Halstrom and the Oscar to Mrs. Dowling.

THE CAULKING IS CRACKED, YOU KNOW.
(Caulking! The stuff that seals your tub to the walls and floor.) Who cracked it? Probably you. Being a lady, you were likely the first one to use it. And the moment you filled it with water and stepped in, the weight caused it to pull, ever so slightly, away from the wall, cracking the caulking compound all around the tub. Now don't think it's because they aren't caulking bathtubs the way they used to. They are. That's the trouble.

THE YEARS TO COME
And it's the type of trouble that can do nothing but get worse. Take a look at your tub. See the cracks where it joins to the wall and the floor? They're probably unsightly enough now, but think what it will look like when they widen. And some of the pieces fall out. Dirt will gather in there. And when you shower it will seep out and streak the tub. (Ugly.) Water will get in there. And soon the whole wall and floor area will start to get rotten. (Expensive.)

IT'S UP TO YOU
Next time you're making your shopping list and thinking of what the house and family need, think of what your bathroom needs. And then buy it where you shop. At the supermarket. Or the hardware store.

Professor Gives Life to Historical Figures

PORTRAIT OF CANADA'S HEROES

Canadians make the mistake of burying their heroes under a blanket of "struggle for economic survival and other deadly issues."

This was stressed by Prof. A. Loft, assistant professor of history at the University of Victoria, when he spoke at the 31st annual provincial council dinner meeting of the British Columbia Canadian Daughters' League, held in the Strathcona Hotel's Old Forge Room, Wednesday evening.

"Everybody's heard of Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone, but who's heard about Harry Kelsay? His exploits make the others' look like a Sunday school picnic. What's more, he did them 102 years before Crockett was born."

Rejecting the assumption that Canadian history is dull, the professor said, "If it is dull, then it's the fault of we who teach it. The story of Canada is the story of little people, not Alexander the Greats and Napoleons. It can be summed up in two sets of initials, H.B.C. and C.P.R. Building the Canadian Pacific Railroad was a fantastic accomplishment. It was built in the face of very bitter criticism."

Prof. Loft told his audience that the voyager was one of the outstanding heroes of Canada, having accomplished exploits that staggered the imagination.

"These men, contrary to popular belief, were not tall people. They were five foot five inches or less, anyone taller would not fit into those canoes. They'd think nothing of portaging 16 hours a day, carrying a load of 360 pounds per man, plus his weight of the canoe, going at a dog-trot the whole time. At the end of the day, they'd eat, mostly pemmican. From all reports, you'd have to be a hero to eat that and enjoy it!"

In his colorful talk, Prof. Loft gave vignettes of many explorers and Canadian pioneers, ranging from the man after whom Roger's Pass is named, to David Thompson, whose name was given to the Thompson River.

Rogers was a short stocky man with long whiskers. This engineer's idea of victuals for one year was a plug of tobacco and a sea biscuit. David Thompson was one of the most brilliant men of his time. He charted millions of miles and his maps are still being used. Yet, when he died in Montreal in 1927, he was as starving and poor as when he lived in the shuns of England. Ironically, it had to be left to his pal, Simon Fraser, to honor Thompson by naming a river for him, one of the few he hadn't seen."

The speaker felt that the story of bush pilots and their opening up of the North was one of the great dears in Canadian history. "Little is known about these men and yet their deeds would have us all sitting on the edge of our seats."

Prof. Loft deplored "the eating away of our traditions" and hoped that the Royal Canadian Police would mount the prefix "Royal" or the right to wear their scarlet tunics.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by banquet chairman, Mrs. H. R. Milburn, Victoria. Other speakers were the national president, Mrs. E. Archer, Edmonton; junior past provincial president, Mrs. J. A. Walker, Vancouver, and newly elected president, Mrs. R. Summer, Port Alberni. Mrs. E. Lefley, Cowichan Lake, gave the toast to Canada.

Other officers elected were:

cordingly elected, Mrs. J. C. Bryant, Vancouver; treasurer,

Mrs. M. Bowes, New Westmin-

Credit Women Fete Bosses At Annual Breakfast Meet

"Bosses are human—they're one of us," summarized Mrs. J. L. Brens, a member of the Arbutus Toastmistress Club, when she spoke to members of the Victoria Credit Women's Breakfast Club and their bosses at the 19th annual bosses' breakfast, Tuesday morning.

Keeping with the theme, "Boss Is a Good Egg" at the affair held in King Arthur's Round Table Restaurant, Mrs. Brens said that bosses are either soft or hard boiled.

"Remember that your boss has worked hard to get there but," she warned, "don't chip him—he may crack."

Expanding the scope of her topic, Mrs. Brens said that whatever the individual wants out of life, it is up to him to find it.

"The simple things in life are free," she said. "However, most of us are too busy reaching for the stars to notice the flowers at our feet."

Mrs. Brens outlined three steps to a richer and happier life. One was to shut out depressing cloudy and rainy weather and thus "create your own sunshine."

CLUB CALENDAR

Mixed card party, Preceptor Alpha Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Friday at 8 p.m., St. Martin-in-the-Fields Church hall, 550 Obed Avenue.

The speaker also suggested, "Think young—at least five years younger than you are."

The third step was to be generous and share with others. Mrs. George McWilliam introduced the speaker, who was thanked by Mrs. R. W. Edwards.

Head table guests were presented Mrs. Evelyn Taylor, Miss V. Beck, first vice-president; Miss Donna Lowe, J. S. Farquhar, second vice-president, Miss Judy Cochrane, Ross Curtis and Mrs. Brens. Special guests Mrs. D. C. Bruce and Mrs. H. L. Norbury were introduced and welcomed by Mrs. Taylor.

The invocation was given by the club's chaplain, Mrs. Evelyn Ward.

A special toast to the bosses was given by Miss Lowe and Mr. Jack Wilson responded with a toast to the women.

A highlight of the breakfast was the presentation of the Career Club pin to Miss Jessie Duff for 25 years of service in credit work. G. H. Livingston, comptroller for the Bay, made the presentation.

Tickets may be obtained at the parish office, 1611 Quadra Street, 383-7322 or Boutique De Laine, 383-4631.

Special guests at the affair, which is being convened by Mrs. H. D. Brimacombe, will be Mrs. Hugh Stephen, Mrs. George Biddle and Mrs. M. Tyrwhitt-Drake.

At Personal Interest

FOR AMBASSADOR

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will entertain at a luncheon in Government House on Friday in honor of His Excellency Osamu Itagaki, ambassador for Japan, and Mrs. Itagaki. That afternoon, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver where they will attend a reception in the Marguerite Street home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Lane, prior to attending the 31st annual Junior League of Vancouver's Cabaret, to be held in the Commodore Cabaret.

Mainland Guests

A number of Vancouver guests travelled to Victoria to attend the wedding of Miss Margaret Robins and Mr. Richard Burgess. They included Mr. and Mrs. J. Crossie, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bull, Mr. and Mrs. C. Gates, Mr. Carl Enzenhofer, the Misses Isobel Hartwell, Nora Caldwell and Patricia Davies. Here from Edmonton were the bride's brother, Mr. Larry Robins and Miss Jacqueline Demars.

Campbell, Mrs. Alf Campbell, Mrs. A. Pimlott, Mrs. R. Hemsworth, Mrs. D. Lake, Mrs. G. Girton, Mrs. A. Glencross, Mrs. W. Heater, Mrs. R. Oliver, Mrs. L. Quayle, Mrs. A. Goyette, Mrs. I. Goyette, the Misses Kathy and Karen Wilson, Diana Quayle, Joan Oliver and Roberta Godell.

Co-Hostesses

Pink carnations en corsage were presented to May bride-elect Miss Barbara Robinson when she was surprised with a shower by co-hostesses Mrs. F. H. Barge and her daughter, Miss Sandra Barge, in their Forbes Street home. A similar corsage was given to the mother of the honor guest, Mrs. Robinson. A decorated box contained the gifts from Mrs. M. E. Braithwaite, Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. W. Mott, Mrs. D. Robinson, Mrs. C. Godfrey, the Misses Maureen Braithwaite, Susan Jones, Barbara Armstrong, Linda Robinson and Sharon Berryhill.

Surprise Party

Yellow roses and carnations en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Judy Wilson when she was surprised with a shower in the Cedar Glen Road home of Mrs. D. Stone. Co-hostess was Mrs. C. Pimlott, Mother of the honor guest, Mrs. T. Wilson, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. E. Hemsworth, both received pink carnation corsages and the groom-elect's grandmother, Mrs. A. Harper, was given pink and white carnations. Games were played and refreshments served.

A large umbrella, decorated in orange, yellow and white, concealed the gifts presented by Mrs. G. Wilson, Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. G. Campbell, Mrs. W.

J. D. Morris will officiate.

Announcement

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Miss Roxi Marie Wilson, 1430 Newport Avenue, and Mr. William Ira Anderson, 1455 McTavish Road.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 13, at 7 p.m. in First United Church. Rev. R.

J. D. Morris will officiate.

From Vancouver

A number of guests travelled from Vancouver to attend the recent wedding of Miss Marion Marson and Mr. David Allen Denton. They included Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Davies, Miss J. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. F. Comer.

Also from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. R. Scott of Port Hardy; Mr. and Mrs. A. Dockstader of Everett, Wash., and Mrs. H. Crager, Port Angeles.

Proceeds of the presentation have been earmarked for the beautification of the church grounds, the centennial year project of all the church's organizations.

Tickets may be obtained at the parish office, 1611 Quadra Street, 383-7322 or Boutique De Laine, 383-4631.

Special guests at the affair, which is being convened by Mrs. H. D. Brimacombe, will be Mrs. Hugh Stephen, Mrs. George Biddle and Mrs. M. Tyrwhitt-Drake.

The meeting is open to the public.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't Let Summer Slip Up On You With Extra Pounds!

Are you going to let it happen again? Are you going to let summer slip up on you before those 5 or 10 pounds overweight you may have slipped off? All you have to do is to put the pressure on to think of the swim suits and all lightweight clothes and less restraining undergarments you will want to wear and look attractive.

I will tell you a secret. I am not going to let it happen to me! I gain weight very easily and have 8 pounds to lose. I have written myself a letter and am now on my own Nine Day Reducing Diet. It's pretty sad when one has to follow one's own advice!

Former Victorian Married In Ceremony on Mainland

A wedding of interest both here and on the mainland took place in Deer Lake United Church, Burnaby, when Joan Hazel Graham exchanged marriage vows and rings with Donald Walter Snyder.

Rev. T. Bulman officiated at the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Graham of Burnaby and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Snyder, 3587 Saanich Road, Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an exquisite gown fashioned with lace caplet. The lace was repeated in her full cardinal veil. Aqua carnations, accented with white satin streamers, formed her bouquet.

Matching gowns of aqua peau de soie, highlighted with overlay of lace, were worn by matron of honor Mrs. G. MacDonald, Vancouver, and bridesmaids, the Misses Nancy Ederuk, Vancouver, and Marlene Castillo, Victoria. Their bouquets were of white carnations, accented with aqua streamers.

Larry Johnston, Victoria, was best man. Ushering the guests were Doug Richardson and Robert Christison, also of Victoria, school friends of 30 years. Inducted as a new member was Mrs. J. W. Gibbs.

The blue and white theme of the wedding was continued in the decorations at the reception following in Ross Garth Hall, New Westminster. A tiered wedding cake centred the head table. H. Campkin proposed the toast to the bride.

A knit dress and coat ensemble of orange wool was worn by the new Mrs. Snyder for travelling on honeymoon to California. Accessories in the same tone and white completed the outfit.

When they return, the couple will be making their home in New Westminster.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Now comes the delicate part... I believe you're the lady who objects to being overcharged, aren't you?"

Now losing excess weight is as easy as popping Pastils/808 in your mouth

CHERRY CREAM PIE

Flaming Meal Finale Is Good as it Looks

Set your next party ablaze—icing whipped; $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice; $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon almond extract.

Cherry Topping:

One 15-oz. can sour pitted pie cherries; $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar; $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons cornstarch; 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind; orange or lemon extract.

Prepare pastry and fit into pan. Do not stretch pastry. Press with fingertips from centre out to remove air bubbles. Fold edge of pastry with fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Cool.

In a mixing bowl combine cream filling ingredients and blend until smooth. Pour into pie shell and refrigerate until set.

Drain cherries, reserving juice. In a heavy saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch. Gradually add cherry juice and lemon rind. Bring to boiling.

Add cherries and bring to boil once more. Pour over cream filling. When ready to serve, flame extract and pour over pie.

Cherry Cream Pie is an exotic concoction which really isn't as difficult to make as it looks. Much of the work can be done the day before a luncheon or dinner party. The dramatic flaming touch will have your guests raving with delight.

CARIBBEAN HONEYMOON

Following their recent marriage in the chapel of First United Church, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. David Allen Denton left on a honeymoon trip to the Grand Cayman Islands in the Caribbean.

The bride, the former Marion Eileen Marson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Marson, 147 St. Andrew's Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. P. Newman. Mrs. H. F. Jarvis reported that 15 veterans' birthdays had been marked during March. It was announced that Mrs. D. MacPhail, Mrs. J. R. Scott and Mrs. J. K. Murray had visited 257 veterans and distributed comforts valued at $70.88. Mrs. F. R. Roberts presided at the meeting.

topped the bride's empire-line gown. She had designed and made the ensemble herself from white peau de soie. Lace trimmed the front panel of the floor-length gown. A coronet of pearl and lace topped the white Bible she carried.

Her attendants were in floor-length gowns of misty pink satin. As accents, they wore coronet headpieces in tone, edged with veils, and they carried pink and white carnations and stephanotis in their bouquets.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. S. Sallos, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister Mrs. E. Tyson and Mrs. M. Mills.

Edward Parrott was best man and ushering the guests were Steven Sailor and Ian Haynes, Port Alberni.

At the reception following in the Tally-Ho Trädelodge, the head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, decorated with pale pink roses and topped with bells. J. Leaver proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Denton donned an ivory Italian-knit suit, trimmed with silver. Her accessories were in navy blue tones. As an added accent, she wore a corsage of white and navy-tinted carnations.

The newlyweds will be making their home at 1615 Belmont Avenue.

COMMON LAW MARRIAGESChurch Considers Blessing Couples

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Church of Canada is considering special church services to give blessings to some of Canada's 200,000 common law marriages, a Hamilton minister said Tuesday.

Rev. H. N. Hillyer, spokesman for a group of Hamilton ministers working toward the change, said a morally-sound common law union is acceptable to God and should be publicly blessed by the church.

The division of congregational life and work of the United Church soon will study the feasibility of services that would provide church blessings on such relationships.

BY ZAMBIACanadian Accused Of Being a Spy

LUSAKA (Reuters) — Five white men, including a Canadian airman, held under Zambia's security laws last week have been accused of spying for an unnamed foreign power, conspiracy and causing alarm and despondency, a lawyer said today.

Lawyer Derek Kemp, counsel for Ian Haigh, one of the detainees, revealed the charges in a press statement here.

The government said last Tuesday that it would not release the grounds for detention because grave matters of security were involved, but said the detainees were free to do so through their lawyers.

After lawyers visited the Mumbwa detention camp, 100 miles from here Wednesday, they said their clients declined to do this.

But today Kemp issued a statement containing the accusations.

The government statement given to Haigh, who is also a lawyer, has five paragraphs listing the grounds on which he was detained.

The statements given to the other four—two Britons, the Canadian and a man of Rhodesian

Man Sentenced For Old Crime

Norbert Amiotte, 22, of Minnedosa, Man., was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary Wednesday for breaking in to a Spokane hardware four years ago.

He had been given a similar sentence just a week ago for breaking in to the same store in February of this year.

Amiotte, who pleaded guilty to the charge when he appeared in Spokane court, will serve both sentences concurrently.

INQUEST INTO ONT. HOSPITAL DEATHDr. Shulman Decries Conditions

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman, former chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto, testified Wednesday night that the Workmen's Compensation Board hospital in suburban North York was a shoddily built institution with no working fire alarms, laxity among the staff and drunkenness among the patients.

Dr. Shulman was testifying at an inquest into the death of Francesco Gualtieri, 36, who died in a fire at the hospital on March 30.

Dr. Shulman said testimony from a former fireman, a heating inspector, a construction man and from patients would support his description of the hospital. He gave their names in his testimony.

Dr. Eli Cass, the coroner, adjourned the inquest to May 29 after hearing Dr. Shulman's testimony.

Jurors toured the hospital building before the hearing was adjourned.

Ontario's supervising coroner, Dr. H. B. Colman, ordered April 5 that the inquest into the Gualtieri death be postponed, but Dr. Shulman insisted that it go on.

Two days later Dr. Shulman was dismissed by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart. Dr. Shulman charged in reply that the government was covering up evidence, and a judicial inquiry was ordered later by Premier John Robarts.

Dr. Shulman Wednesday night suggested the names of witnesses who should be subpoenaed when the hearing resumes:

"First," Fred Jackson, a former construction man who will testify that fire dampers at the hospital had not worked since the hospital was built.

"Secondly," Mr. Samuel Bennett, a building and heating inspector of 14 Milner Rd., Brampton, who will testify that un'safe construction methods were used at the WCB hospital, including hollow-core doors, improper louvers, excessive glass partitions, too-narrow exit doors and probably no fire dampers where needed.

The government said it is considering criminal proceedings against the men. Their detention will be reviewed by a tribunal in about three weeks.

Just Call School

Students of Oak Bay senior secondary school are holding a Slave Day as their centennial project on Saturday, April 29. Several hundred energetic student slaves will offer their services to home-makers of Oak Bay, and hope to raise $1,000 in donations for their labor.

The money, with other funds from the Provincial High Schools Project 100, will buy schools-on-wheels for India, Pakistan and other undeveloped areas.

"We are willing to tackle any duty, from baby-sitting and cleaning silverware to gardening, furniture moving, or painting," a spokesman said.

"We shall be available all day Saturday, April 29."

An extra Slave Day project will be a one-dollar car wash at Bob and Gail's Texaco station at the corner of Foul Bay and Oak Bay roads.

All residents wishing to acquire slaves should phone Oak Bay Senior Secondary School between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 385-7221.

"Please help us help an underprivileged country," the spokesman said.

Celebration Costs Him $300

A man who celebrated the passing of his apprenticeship exams with "a few beers" pleaded guilty in central court Wednesday to a charge of impaired driving.

Emile Wilson of 1660 Old Isla lant Highway, gave a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent after being stopped by police who saw him car out of control and travelling at speeds up to 50 miles an hour in Esquimalt.

Wilson, who told the court he was scheduled to go into hospital "any time" for a heart operation, said he was only working part-time as a body man and asked for time to pay his fine.

His licence was suspended for four months.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts this week to:

Janet S. Logan, 1411 Harrison Street, Victoria, from Byron E. Logan, 2 Price Road, Colwood. They were married at Halifax, N.S., in 1962.

Susan J. Young, 2848 Oak Street, Chemainus, from Stephen W. Young, 480 Herbert Street, Duncan. They were married at Duncan in 1963.

Philippe J. Poole, 321 Main

John R. Cooper, 1115 Fort Street, Victoria, from

Elaine G. Poole, 1031 Wollaston Street, Esquimalt. They were married at Victoria in 1953.

Thirdly, Mr. D. A. Dunlop of Lindsay, a retired special inspector of hospitals and a retired platoon chief of the Toronto fire department, who will testify that there was no working fire alarm or sprinkler system on the night of the fire.

Dr. Shulman said he would go on name seven persons who had informed him they would give evidence regarding laxity within the hospital itself, and drunkenness among the patients.

CANADIAN SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION

Computer Will Point Way For Party to North Pole

By BOB MacKENZIE

Ottawa (CP) — How can you find the exact site of the North Pole when the polar icecap is constantly drifting—as fast as two miles a day—on top of 13,000 feet of Arctic Ocean?

A Canadian-led scientific expedition hopes to solve the problem next week by setting up camp "upstream" in the ocean current and drifting over the pole.

"We hope to come within 85 of 100 feet of the pole," a Dominion Observatory spokesman said in an interview.

"It's impossible to come closer than that and prove it."

The team headed by Dr. J. R. Webber of the observatory will have a direct radio-and-telephone link to a computer while on the ice to check the rate and direction of the drift from information provided by determining positions of stars.

RELY ON COMPUTER

Once they get the course of their first camp on the ice, they will move to the section that will drift over the pole, again relying on the computer to tell them just where they are passing over it.

Because of the need for star sightings, weather conditions will determine the exact date the party will move to the pole. Dr. Webber already is at the base camp at Alert on the northeast coast of Ellesmere Island, 420 miles from the pole. Others in the party left Ottawa Tuesday for Alert.

Cloud forecasts from data provided by U.S. weather satellites will determine when the party will leave Alert to fly to the pole, but they expect to be ready by next Wednesday or Thursday.

Once they leave, they expect to stay on the ice two days, long enough to drift over the pole twice, making scientific readings and blasting a hole through the ice to drop an electronic navigational aid that will send signals from the ocean floor for the next year or two.

The instrument has been donated by a U.S. instrument manufacturer and is expected to be useful to U.S. teams working on floating ice islands in the Arctic.

Even if clouds prevent accurate location of the pole, the trip will not be wasted.

One of the main objectives is gravity studies—to check on the differences in the force of gravity at the pole in relation to the equator and other parts of the world.

Effects of the earth's rotation cause a difference of about five parts in 1,000 in the pull of gravity at the pole and equator, with the pull stronger at the pole. This will be the first accurate measurements made at the pole.

There was speculation a while ago that the observatory team might have company at the pole with a joint Canada-U.S. team trying to make the trip by motorized sleds. But that group bogged down just north of Ellesmere when it ran into giant cliffs of ice pushed up by the pressures in the drifting ice.

"There's no race as far as we're concerned," said Jim Tanner.

An observatory official said he has tried to avoid advance publicity about Dr. Webber's team because it might look as though the two parties were in a race for the pole.

JUDGES AGREE

'Festival Atmosphere Ideal'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

When the Greater Victoria Music Festival ends Friday night with the Festival Highlights concert, it is already clear that it will go on record as the most outstanding in the 20-year history of the annual event.

British adjudicators Nigel Cox and Cecil Cope, who have been swinging across Canada as members of the Canadian Federation of Music Festivals teams, see the Victoria festival in perspective and they are deeply impressed by many aspects of it.

Of the festival as a whole, Mr. Cox said Wednesday, with Mr. Cope nodding agreement: "If all festivals had the atmosphere of this one the situation would be ideal."

Every day over the two-week period has brought its highlights and three conservatively marking adjudicators—speech arts judge Mrs. Eileen Parker is the third—have been impelled into awarding marks in the nineties more than once.

Mr. Cope has been impressed with the folk song standard in two classes, which have made up in quality what is lacking as far as numbers of entrants go.

But Wednesday afternoon he described himself as "moved to tears" by the unaccompanied singing of Blow the Wind Southerly by teen-aged Penny Bavan.

"What a promising voice and style . . . there was real artistry and beauty here. In fact it was most moving," he commented.

In the class in which there were nine singers aged from 14 to 16, he found it impossible to choose between Penny and Irene Boese who came on next, as he said, "like a bomb shell," singing a Mexican folk song with her own guitar accompaniment. He gave them both 90.

The popular family ensemble class, Wednesday night at Fellowship Hall, brought a thrill to both adjudicator and audience with a performance by the Patterson family—Pat, Ann, Bill and Susan.

"I have never heard anything like this anywhere," said Mr. Cope, awarding the group 91 marks.

Just before the family appearance, at St. John's Hall across the street, Pat Patterson had topped the under-19 modern piano class with two marks of 91, although Mr. Cox found the competition extremely close between Pat and Madeline Groos to whom he awarded two 89s.

Pianist Linn Hendry continued her already spectacular performance by achieving a total of 269 out of a possible 300, including a 90 and a 91 for her concert group Wednesday night. Having already scored a 90 in the Chopin class Tuesday with a performance that Mr. Cox called "poetic and beautifully played . . . I can't quite recall ever having heard it better done," she also received an 88 in the open solo class.

... setting a record

Miss Hendry plays again tonight in one of two important Centennial classes for pianists.

The winner in these classes may advance to the provincial finals in Vancouver next month and, if a winner there, to the national competition in Saint John in June.

Two other young pianists who have done exceptionally well to date, are Becky Jay and Wendy Stofer, who between them, have

Instructors' School Will Start Sunday

An instructor school, part of the Red Cross water safety program, will be held at the Crystal Garden and Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, starting Sunday.

Sessions will be held at 9 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Wednesdays through May 21. Fee is $10 for instructor candidates (18 and over) and $5 for leader candidates (16 to 18) and leaders wishing to become instructors.

Applications should be sent to Red Cross House.

$1 Million Lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Johnny Desmond has disclosed plans to bring a $1,000,000 damage suit growing out of the fall of a stage curtain. Desmond's lawyer said the actor, a star in Funny Girl, suffered "serious brain and central nervous system injuries" when the weighted curtain crashed down on him last February.

contract which will place him on Victoria Symphony podium for minimum of two years, is Montreal conductor Laszlo Gati. With him is

Gati Signs Two-Year Contract As Conductor for Symphony

A Hungarian-born Montrealer who is "the unanimous choice of the orchestra itself" Wednesday night signed a two-year contract to become the new musical director and conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Laszlo Gati, only previously scheduled guest conductor of the 1966-67 season, returns to Victoria in mid-May to assume his duties and finalize plans for the 27th season.

In confirming the appointment, symphony president John Meredith commented: "Of all the people we have seen it is felt very interesting concerned that Mr. Gati best suits all the needs of our community and I am personally delighted that we have been able to conclude the arrangement."

DEVELOPMENTS

Mr. Gati says that, while there are many problems to be solved, he is enthused about the situation. He feels the orchestra has achieved a quite remarkable standard but "we can look forward to tremendous developments."

In discussion with the committee, Wednesday, he outlined his proposals for an exciting 1967-68 season, to include a gala series of six concerts with the focus on outstanding soloists, and a series of four masterwork concerts in which major symphonic and symphonic-choral works will be performed.

SELECTION

Consideration is also being given to a third series which will offer subscribers a choice of selection from the other two. Pop concerts, development of the symphony chamber group as a concert orchestra and individual recitals by symphony guest soloists are also being contemplated.

Mr. Gati's first duty will be to conduct six out-of-town Victoria Symphony Centennial concerts in May. These have been arranged by the Provincial Centennial Committee under a special grant.

The Montreal conductor and violinist will become a full resident of Victoria in July when he will move here with his wife, Agnes, and two young daughters.

Hees Against Fees; Wants Free Tuition

TORONTO (CP) — The time has come to provide free university education to all those capable of passing entrance examinations, George Hees said today.

The candidate for the Progressive Conservative party leadership said a much greater proportion of the national income will have to be spent on education.

Mr. Hees is Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Northumberland in Ontario.

Businessmen should learn to look on the price of maintaining the educational system as one of their costs of production, he said.

Heavy Snowstorm Cripples Areas Across Prairies

By The Canadian Press

A late spring snowstorm described as the most severe in recent memory left snow ranging from seven to 23 inches across southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, toppling temperatures 20-25 degrees below normal.

Heaviest snowfall of the storm, which started Wednesday, was at Lethbridge in southern Alberta where 23 inches was reported. Schools, and some businesses were closed and traffic came to a halt except for essential facilities.

The weatherman said there was no break sighted in the storm that moved across southern Alberta and Saskatchewan then into the Dakotas.

Traffic on a hill along Highway 3 west of Lethbridge was snarled by numerous transport trucks which had skidded off, across or jackknifed on the road.

Many farm homes were believed left isolated by the storm. Fear was expressed in southern Alberta that winds could cause severe drifting.

Delivery of home mail was cancelled and air flights diverted or grounded in Regina as freezing rain snared traffic and communications throughout much of the province.

Rain, sleet and snow in other areas of the province disrupted communications and delayed buses up to six hours.

Many highways north of Regina and throughout the southern and southwestern part of the province were blocked. Canadian National Telegraphs reported all lines west of Moose Jaw and east of Qu'Appelle, 30 miles east of Regina, were down earlier today because of sleet damage.

IN CRATER?

Surveyor's Moon Shots Blurred

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor III's first blurred pictures hint it may be resting in a lunar crater after a gentle touchdown in an area astronauts may someday explore.

While the three-legged craft kept its moon-scratching claw retracted, spacecraft controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said photographs radioed during the 10 hours following the landing Wednesday showed less detail than those from Surveyor I last June. But they theorized this was due to sunlight reflected into the camera.

A spokesman said the horizon around the vehicle was about five degrees higher than it would be if Surveyor III had landed on a flat plain.

First operation of a scoop designed to extend from the spacecraft and dig in the lunar soil was scheduled for late tonight or early Friday. The shovel, on the end of a five-foot arm, can dig as deep as 18 inches, pick up small rocks, or hammer hard enough to break a brick.

The amount of power needed to move the shovel through the soil is expected to indicate if the surface is strong enough to support manned landing craft. Pictures taken after each of its jerky movements should show whether the soil is sandy or gravelly.

PEARSON HAS NO RETIREMENT PLANS

'We Like Mike' Buttons Back in Vogue

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "We like Mike" buttons are being taken off the shelf and dusted off by Liberals as word is spreading around political circles that Prime Minister Lester Pearson will stay on as government party leader much longer than some Grits had expected.

Impetus was added to the rumours circulating on Parliament Hill that Mr. Pearson will carry on for a year or more when Privy Council President Walter Gordon Wednesday urged the party's national leader to think twice about retirement plans and to remain in office indefinitely.

"My own belief is that a large majority of Liberals everywhere in Canada would be pleased if Mr. Pearson decided to stay on for quite some time. Quite apart from that, there does not appear to be any clear consensus about who should take his place if and when he does decide to go — although some members of the cabinet do give the impression that if no one else wants it, they just could be persuaded."

"I mention this matter only because it does color the atmosphere in Ottawa and in political circles throughout Canada these days and is bound to continue to do so would step down this fall were ill-founded. But Wednesday Mr. Gordon made it public that Mr. Pearson's colleagues would like him to remain in office indefinitely.

In recent public speeches here and in the U.S. he has spoken of the objectives he would like to achieve. Following the shuffle of his cabinet earlier this month with its "new" look he talked about the emphasis on youth, and spoke of leading a fresh young cabinet with bright new ideas.

He has spoken recently of the new social reforms and the Liberal party's plan for the good life for Canadians. He has emphasized that it is not good to concentrate on the old issues many of which have now lost their meaning.

Mr. Pearson is much concerned with the problems of urban living of swift movement and of mass activity. He has said that Canadian governments must face up to the problems of electronic living of less work with greater production and of more leisure and greater tensions.

He has spoken of the need for recognition of a new world, new in values and new in influence.

The prime minister is setting out the targets for his government and party. He is not acting or talking like a leader who is contemplating the easy relaxed life of retirement. More and more he sounds and acts like a Liberal leader who expects to be around for some time yet, at the head of the party striving to find solutions for urgent Canadian problems.

And lately the word is heard from many members of the cabinet and backbenchers that they do not want to see him talking about stepping down now. They want him to carry on while he has the health and strength to do the job.

Canada's Oldest?

GREY IS STARTING TO SHOW in his dark coat, but he is alert—maybe a little bit sassy—and his well-covered ribs attest to the fact he still eats like a horse. But he IS a horse! Yes, but a most unusual one in that he could be the oldest one in Canada — 38 years. He is Air Pilot, a gelding show horse living on the "Spring Ridge" farm of Herschell Smith, 7247 East Saanich Road, which formerly was the home of the late Dr. Norman James, a retired veterinarian, who bought him in 1941 on the prairies. When Mrs. James sold the farm after her husband's death, there was a proviso that Air Pilot should live out his days there. His custodian is Frank Rafford, shown with him in the picture, who boasts that when the horse was a venerable 22 years of age, he won the Western Canadian high jump championship at Calgary — six feet four inches. "And he can still kick up his heels," says Frank. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

When Can Wife Walk Out? Legal Experts to Answer

When can a wife leave her husband?

What should you consider when buying a house?

Are you responsible for damage done by your children?

These are just three of the 20 questions that will be formally answered by four city lawyers at a public forum in M C Pherson Playhouse Tuesday night.

And members of the audience will be able to put any other question that bothers them to the legal experts.

The forum, which will be broadcast live by CJVI, a co-sponsor of the event along with the Victoria Times and the Victoria Bar Association, will start at 8:30 p.m.

LAST MINUTE

Admission tickets for the forum are completely gone but it is expected some seats may become available at the last minute.

A list of 20 formal questions to the panel has been drawn up and will be answered during the first half of the program.

During the intermission the audience will be able to write other questions on cards that will be supplied, and these will be answered during the second half of the program.

Moderator of the panel will

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Blue Max, the highest decoration in the German Air Force in the First World War, inscribed with the French words: Pour Le Mérite? L.N.

A. We can only surmise. The Encyclopedia Britannica does not mention the Blue Max in its chapters on medals and decoration. But it does refer to a German order, Ordre Pour Le Mérite. This was founded in 1867 by Frederick of Prussia when elector prince and was called Order of Generosity. In 1746, Frederick the Great renamed the decoration Ordre Pour Le Mérite and there were two divisions, military and civil. Frederick had a French tutor and loved French literature. Perhaps this accounts for the French name for the order.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of law and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to answer commercial or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

ARTHUR MAYSE ON SPECIAL ASSIGNMENT

FOR SCHOOLS Mayor Urges Yes Vote On Referendum

Mayor Hugh Stephen today called for a "yes" vote on the $13 million schools referendum on May 13.

But he said his endorsement of the school board's aims did not mean that he approved the provincial-municipal cost sharing arrangement now existing.

"Our position has to be that while we complain about the formula we cannot deny the necessity," he said.

The mayor told the city's finance committee to make a special note of the distribution of costs in the new school budget.

The local levy to be picked up by municipalities is $8,489,000 while the provincial government pays $6,351,738 — or about 38 per cent of the costs," he said.

NOT CRITICAL

"I do not make this statement in any critical sense," he said. "I make it just to put things in their right perspective. I just want the people to realize that the cost position is inequitable."

The mayor added that with so many figures "bandied about" the impression was sometimes left that the provincial government paid 50 per cent of school costs only this year.

"I think that impression should be corrected," he said.

ALSO APPROVES

Ald. Percy Frampton said he also approved a "yes" vote on the referendum. "We have to support it whatever our thoughts might be on the provincial government," he said.

CITY SUPPORT LIKELY FOR TREATMENT CENTRE

Victoria will probably donate $10,000 over a two-year period towards the cost of a burns treatment centre at St. Joseph's Hospital.

But council wants more details on total costs and the general fund-raising drive before it gives final approval to the special grant.

When built, the treatment centre will be named after late Mayor Alfred Toone. It is a Centennial project of the Victoria Labour Council of which Mr. Toone was secretary for many years.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he felt a substantial sum should be donated by the city in order that the late mayor might have a worthy memorial.

ALL SOUTH ISLAND

Cable Failure Cuts Off Power

Every household on southern Vancouver Island was blacked out shortly after noon today following a power failure on the mainland.

Only essential services—including hospitals and major businesses—received power during the 35-minute blackout.

Even many traffic lights were out, causing minor jams at important junctions.

The shutdown came at 12:20 p.m. while most key Hydro personnel were away at lunch.

It wasn't until 12:55 p.m. that normal service was resumed.

Exact cause of the failure was still not known at press time.

But a Hydro spokesman said it has been traced to the cable running between Tsawwassen on the mainland and Stratford station at Crofton.

The power is fed from Crofton to the southern part of Vancouver Island over the Malahat.

ESSENTIAL SERVICE

Emergency power for essential services was provided by substations dotted around the Island.

It was not known exactly how many household and businesses suffered from the power loss.

But indications were that everyone on the main circuit was affected, including Sidney, Brentwood and possibly areas further north.

WIDE AREA

It is believed to be one of the biggest blackouts in recent years on the Island.

The Hydro building switchboard in Victoria was jammed solid as hundreds rang in to report the loss of power.

Radio and TV stations were off the air during the blackout.

Lights went out in many downtown businesses, though major stores were apparently not affected.

According to marina operators, the dredging will make Shoal Bay one of the largest small boat harbors on the Pacific Coast.

Dredging is expected to start next month.

Already the mid-section of the harbor has four marinas. The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has and the Capital City Yacht Club will have marine facilities in the bay.

The harbor also provides wharfing facilities for fishing boats.

According to marina operators, the dredging will make Shoal Bay one of the largest small boat harbors on the Pacific Coast.

Special Centennial Year air charters may be flown out of Victoria bound for Montreal, the whole Corps right across Canada," he said.

"It's an archaic organization that has not been changed for 107 years."

NO RESPONSE

Mr. Sykes said no response has been made by the federal government yet.

He revealed the move during a press conference at which he demanded public release of a report prepared by Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman on the administration of the Corps' Victoria division, headed by former Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele, currently on an extended trip to Europe.

Mr. Pearlman was engaged by the corps early this year to study complaints by the Three Cees Association and individual commissioners that there have been many administrative abuses in the Victoria division.

Mr. Sykes indicated that poor working conditions is a relatively common complaint in the Corps and that's the reason for a Royal Commission request.

He said almost 100 commissioners now belong to the Three Cees and all but eight of 140 commissioners contacted in February supported a brief outlining numerous complaints which was presented to Mr. Pearlman. He said more of the 420 commissioners would have been contacted but the Three Cees was given only three days to file its brief.

"We have found out that he (Mr. Pearlman) has completed his investigation and his findings are in the hands of the Corps already," said Mr. Sykes. "We feel it should be made public."

He said Victor Hadland, acting commandant of the Victoria CCC Division, should make the report public even though Mr. Wurtele is away, because the controversy was public and reached the floor of the House of Commons before Mr. Pearlman was commissioned to make the inquiry.

Mr. Sykes indicated that Dr. Whitbread's salary should also increase.

10 Occupants Flee Early Morning Raid

Police are today looking for two suspects who endangered the lives of 10 people when they set fire to an old wooden hotel at Cumberland.

The suspects, believed to be young men, set fire to the back and front of the 30-room Waverly Hotel in this sleepy village eight miles west of Courtenay.

But for the quick action of owner's wife Mrs. Hazel Jordan, the occupants might all have been burned to death.

"There's no doubt the fire was deliberately set," said an RCMP spokesman today.

"An inflammable fluid was used."

Two firemen were overcome by smoke while battling the two fires.

Said fire chief Jack Robertson, 38: "It was a difficult fire to fight."

"We were split into two forces—one force at the back, another at the front."

"Both were difficult to get at and it took more than an hour to bring under control, another two hours to put out."

"There's no doubt the two fires were started at the same time."

One fire was set beneath the building, only a few yards from the main entrance.

The second started in an old washroom at the rear.

As the flames rushed up the outside wall of the hotel in the early hours of Wednesday, the eight elderly residents slept soundly inside.

Mrs. Jordan aroused her husband Claude shortly before 2 a.m., after smelling smoke.

Both were able to get out of the burning hotel.

An inspector from the fire marshal's office in Vancouver was still sift through the charred remains today.

Fire damage was confined to five rooms of the hotel, but water damage was extensive.

All the guests have been temporarily moved out of the hotel.

The Waverly is the third Cumberland Hotel to catch fire in 17 years.

First to go was the Union, followed by the Victory.

Only hotels left in the former coal mining town are the Cumberland and the King George.

Both were rebuilt after being burned down in a fire which destroyed most of the business district in the 1930s.

The Waverly was built in the late 1890s.

Commissionaires Ask Canada-Wide Probe

A royal commission investigation of the entire Corps of Commissioners organization across Canada has been requested, a spokesman for a dissatisfied group of the security guards here said today.

Donald Sykes, secretary-treasurer of the Three Cees Association, said he had forwarded "by one of our advisors" to federal solicitor-general Pennell in Ottawa last week.

"The request was for a royal commission investigation of the whole Corps right across Canada," he said.

NO RESPONSE

Mr. Sykes said no response has been made by the federal government yet.

He revealed the move during a press conference at which he demanded public release of a report prepared by Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman on the administration of the Corps' Victoria division, headed by former Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele, currently on an extended trip to Europe.

Mr. Pearlman was engaged by the corps early this year to study complaints by the Three Cees Association and individual commissioners that there have been many administrative abuses in the Victoria division.

Mr. Sykes indicated that Dr. Whitbread's salary should also increase.

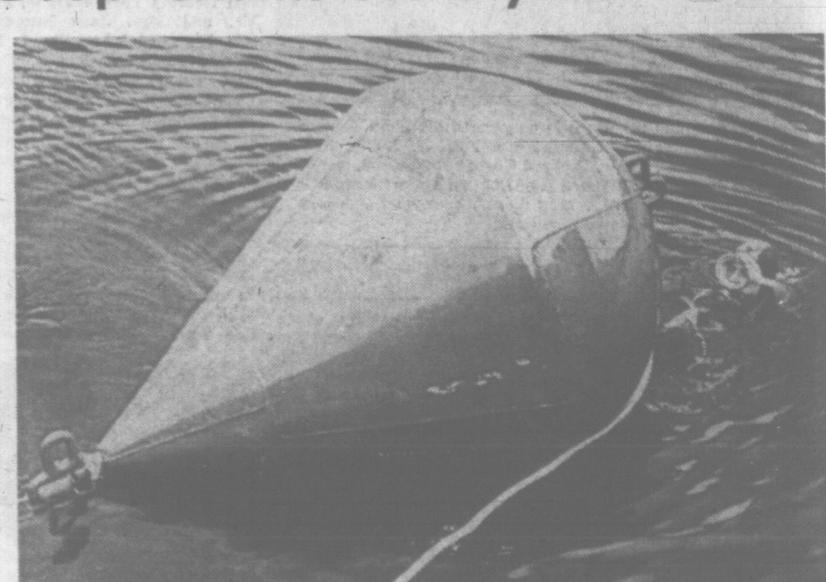

City manager Dennis Young made the recommendation this morning that Dr. Whitbread's salary be increased from $16,392 a year to $18,540.

Rejection of a raise in pay for the senior health officer has been a matter of form for the past several years.

This morning there was no debate.

Mr. Young said recent salary increases paid provincial health officers it seemed appropriate that Dr. Whitbread's salary should also increase.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Man Drowns, Friend Fined

NANAIMO—Frank Dushenka, 40, was fined $500 today for operating a vessel while impaired.

Magistrate Stanley Wardill also ordered that Dushenka be prohibited from operating a vessel for three years.

He ordered that the fine be paid in monthly installments of $100, beginning May 20.

Dushenka was charged following a boating mishap Wednesday which claimed the life of Ernest Miltton Dornfield, 41. Dornfield is officially listed as missing and presumed drowned.

Dushenka told the court today that Dornfield had stood up in the 14-foot boat they had rented from a Nanaimo marina and said "this is the end" and jumped into the water.

He said he searched until dark and then returned to the marina.

The court was told that Dushenka fell into the water himself at the marina. Police were called when he told of his companion's disappearance.

Who-Who Making Beep-Beep?

DUNCAN — Local police are sticking to their story... the beep noises reported as coming from unidentified flying objects are in fact coming from owls.

The official theory is discounted by local UFO devotee Verne Stanley-Jones.

He is convinced the beep signals are being transmitted by an electronic device.

"It could never have been picked up by the carrier wave of a ham radio set if it was an owl," he said.

The mighty beeping noises were first reported by Chris and Mark Dochterman, 15-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Docheerman, Cowichan Lake Road.

"We could hear it distinctly," said Mark.

He said the source transmitted a precise number of beeping sounds per second.

No clues were found when Mr. Stanley-Jones led a search of the area.

A Duncan police official said the noises were almost certainly coming from small barn owls. The beep noises were only being heard at night and started and stopped as the listeners moved into or out of the bush.

Mr. Stanley-Jones says the Dochterman incident is identical to one at Hollyburn, North Vancouver, last June.

The police verdict then was also—an owl.

But the curator of Vancouver zoo said the particular type of owl suspected did not live in the Hollyburn area.

Pachena Chieftain's Heir To Battle Home Shortage

BY HUMPHRY DAVY

KENNEHOM — Ruth Young, 13, of Willow Road, Chemainus, suffered concussion Wednesday evening when thrown heavily from her horse.

She is in Chemainus General Hospital where her condition is "satisfactory."

Ruth was riding her horse Pil in Fullers Lake Park.

She was coming off gravel onto the pavement when the horse stumbled.

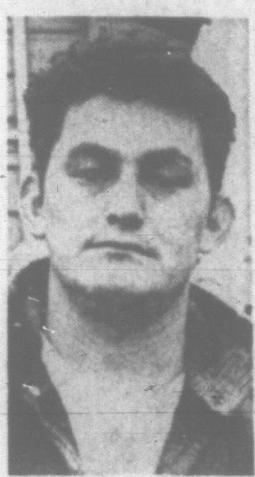

Pil was scared when she tripped and bolted, throwing Ruth to the ground.

The chief, a former outstanding fisherman and sealer, is in his late eighties.

Request Rejected for Aid On Brain Research Project

GANGES — The department of education has turned down a request by Gulf Islands school board for a grant to assist a private research project into brain growth among young children.

The grant-in-aid was requested for Dr. R. B. Bourdillon of Salt Spring Island who is working with a group of parents to study brain growth in children from birth to six years.

The study is aimed at assisting development of full potential intelligence in adult life.

"It would be a pity not to have more work done along these lines."

"Dr. Bourdillon is a competent person with a truly scientific approach and will keep appropriate records. It would be sad if the board did not help out in some way."

The board will investigate other possible avenues of assistance for the former Oxford don.

these sources would be used to provide new homes to members of the band and to upkeep and maintain existing houses.

Indian department officials are impressed with the commercial scheme and are considering an application for a grant to start the project.

Mr. Jones bases the success of his proposed commercial project on Port Renfrew becoming a major recreational centre in the near future.

"This area has a big recreational potential," he said. "Apart from fishing, people are now coming here to boat and hike. They want to get away from the cramped recreational areas near urban centres."

He noted that as the reserve is situated at the mouth of the San Juan and Gordon Rivers, its location was ideal for recreation.

"If they ever re-open the west coast trail from Bamfield to Port Renfrew there will be a big demand from camping and motel accommodations in this area," he said. "We have the land to provide some of these facilities."

SHORTAGE

He said there would be no difficulty in renting cottages to non-whites as there is already a shortage of homes for miners and loggers.

Mr. Jones who is in charge of developing a new subdivision on the reserve, said only 22 per cent of his people have adequate housing.

4 V.I. APPEARANCES PLANNED BY STRACHAN

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan has begun an annual post-legislative tour of the province which will include four engagements on Vancouver Island, one of them a confrontation with the rebel wing of his caucus.

He will speak in Parksville, Saturday, in Victoria May 3 at a Victoria Labor Council meeting, and in Nanaimo May 18.

On May 13 he will attend a caucus of the 16 NDP MLAs in Port Alberni which may produce some fireworks.

Adjudicator To Perform

DUNCAN — Among performers at a concert to raise funds to aid local music students will be Willard Schultz of Seattle, adjudicator of the Cowichan Music Festival for the past two years.

Cowichan School Board has agreed to give free use of the senior secondary school auditorium for the May concert.

Other performers will include Heather Dougan of Cobble Hill and Alma Colk of Duncan, both former music festival winners who are studying at the University of B.C. faculty of music.

Proceeds will provide interest-free loans to students taking music training in a recognized school or college.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer,
If I want to top stitch about $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch from my seams to look like the popular welt seaming, how do I go about it when the pattern doesn't show it? Also, any clue about keeping top stitching even and avoiding that pulled, bias look between the stitching line and edge or seams of garment will be appreciated. Mrs. D. W.

Dear Mrs. D. W.,
If you intend to top stitch seams where the pattern doesn't show this detail, be sure to cut the garments with a one-inch seam allowance instead of the usual $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch. The effect you want of a welt seam wouldn't be the same without stitching through the seam allowance as well as the top layer of fabric.

Here's a great tip for keeping stitching straight and avoiding that pulled look; which one of my former students came up with. Take a piece of cardboard from hem tape (or whatever), and cut a two-inch slash. Sorry, you'll still have to straight down from the long struggle with the curves.

side, the exact width of the stitching you are using. Then cut a wedge out of this by cutting $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch wider at the top to nothing at the end of your slash. You will have a "V" type cut out with one straight edge.

Place the long edge of the cardboard along the seamline or the outer edge of garment. Carefully and firmly hold your fingers on each side of this wedge and allow your presser foot to ride on the cardboard with the needle stitching your fabric right next to the straight edge of the wedge. When you have stitched to the end of your slash (two inches), keep needle down and raise presser foot and slide the cardboard down and continue.

The whole secret is not only are you getting a perfect guide but holding the cardboard firmly as you stitch is preventing the top layer of fabric from slipping forward. This works perfect on straight stitching. Sorry, you'll still have to straight down from the long struggle with the curves.

Why Not 'Get With It' Folks?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I know you are not a fashion editor, but maybe you can help me. There is continual friction between me and my husband over the length of my skirts. I will be 50 this year and have four grown children and four grandchildren.

I have a nice figure, work in an office and wear my skirts to the middle of my kneecap.

My husband, who is a business executive, says I am too modest and old fashioned. I should "get with it" and wear my skirts shorter like the fashionable women do.

I think teenagers look cute with short skirts, but after 40 a woman should have a little more dignity about her.

Should I shorten my skirts to please my husband? Or should I leave them the way they are and get an argument from my husband every week?

"SMITTY" IN TORONTO

DEAR "SMITTY": Tell your husband you'll shorten your skirt if he'll let his hair grow down to his shoulders, wear skin-tight trousers, and a turtle-neck sweater to his office. Then you can "get with it" together.

DEAR ABBY: I am a high-school student. Last weekend my very best girl friend slept over. The day after she left, my mother missed about $12 worth of her good cosmetics. I didn't want my mother to think my friend had taken them so I asked the doctor to send the bill to the boy's parents.

He did, but now the doctor tells me that they did not pay it. Don't you think they should pay this bill instead of me? What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: Pay the doctor. Then retain a lawyer to tell your neighbor that you expect repayment and (possibly) punitive damages.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEWILDERED DAD" IN BOULDER: Let him find the next job himself. Every time you carry a strong, healthy person who can walk, you contribute to his weakness.

A pair of showers has been held to honor bride-elect Miss Elizabeth Taylor, whose marriage to Jim Forward takes place on May 5. Pink was the color theme used to decorate the Dalhousie Street home of Mrs. A. H. Steppen when she entertained a shower. An arrangement of pink and white freesia, flanked with candles and miniature parasols, centred the refreshment table. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Robert W. Taylor, and her grandmother, Mrs. R. H. Taylor of Vancouver.

Thinking of hairdos, I was never one who could sleep with hard, uncomfortable rollers as a pillow. One way to keep the ends of hair in place so that a fluffy pillow can't disturb them is to tape them down with hair tape. I found rolls of this special tape selling for 40 cents for 15 yards. This adhesive holds fast even when hair is damp. It's gentle to hair and comes off so easily that you wouldn't know it was there. Another thing, it isn't sticky or messy. Pick up a roll for your vanity table.

THE CAULKING IS CRACKED, YOU KNOW. (Caulking? The stuff that seals your tub to the walls and floor.) Who cracked it? Probably you. Being a lady, you were likely the first one to use it. And the moment you filled it with water and stepped in, the weight caused it to pull, ever so slightly, away from the wall, cracking the caulking compound all around the tub. Now don't think it's because they aren't caulking bathtubs the way they used to. They are. That's the trouble.

THE YEARS TO COME
And it's the type of trouble that can do nothing but get worse. Take a look at your tub. See the cracks where it joins to the wall and the floor? They're probably unsightly enough now, but think what it will look like when they widen. And some of the pieces fall out. Dirt will gather in there. And when you shower it will seep out and streak the tub. (Ugly.) Water will get in there. And soon the whole wall and floor area will start to get rotten. (Expensive.)

So what can you do? Wait until it gets so bad that it has to be fixed! And then start the whole process over again? That doesn't make much sense. The problem is in the caulking compound. Up until now most of them have been made of plaster. And when your tub makes its first move, the compound cracks. Because it's not flexible.

Youth Not the Same Say Debate Winners

Through debate, members of the Arbutus Toastmasters Club decided that the youth of today is not facing up to the challenges of the world as did their forebears.

Speakers for the evening were Mrs. H. J. Wendt and Mrs. C. Dowling, who were introduced by Mrs. George Love.

Also taking part in the program were Mrs. I. Hogarth, Mrs. H. L. Butt, Mrs. L. Halstrom, Mrs. H. L. Brens, Mrs. P. Small, Mrs. W. G. Smith, Miss Tangi Irvine, Mrs. R. S. Walls, and Mrs. A. N. Reid.

General evaluator Mrs. P. Small awarded the Spur to Mrs. L. Halstrom and the Oscar to Mrs. Dowling.

THE CAULKING IS CRACKED, YOU KNOW. (Caulking? The stuff that seals your tub to the walls and floor.) Who cracked it? Probably you. Being a lady, you were likely the first one to use it. And the moment you filled it with water and stepped in, the weight caused it to pull, ever so slightly, away from the wall, cracking the caulking compound all around the tub. Now don't think it's because they aren't caulking bathtubs the way they used to. They are. That's the trouble.

THE YEARS TO COME
And it's the type of trouble that can do nothing but get worse. Take a look at your tub. See the cracks where it joins to the wall and the floor? They're probably unsightly enough now, but think what it will look like when they widen. And some of the pieces fall out. Dirt will gather in there. And when you shower it will seep out and streak the tub. (Ugly.) Water will get in there. And soon the whole wall and floor area will start to get rotten. (Expensive.)

So what can you do? Wait until it gets so bad that it has to be fixed! And then start the whole process over again? That doesn't make much sense. The problem is in the caulking compound. Up until now most of them have been made of plaster. And when your tub makes its first move, the compound cracks. Because it's not flexible.

If you had a car that didn't break so often, you wouldn't be broke so often.

Volvos are built so strong they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways and over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

Come in and drive a Volvo Canadian. You'll find it's more than just a strong car. Volvo out-accelerates every other compact in its class and still gets over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

Extortion Suspect Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP)—An 18-year-old youth charged with intent to extort $5,000 from member of parliament Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) was remanded five days in magistrate's court today at the request of defence counsel.

Gary Stephen Ross, an iron works employee, was remanded by Magistrate James Bartman.

Soviet Stages Underground N-Test

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said today the Soviet Union had conducted a nuclear test in the low to intermediate range.

Kuwait Troops Mass on Iraq Border

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Kuwaiti troops were reported massed today on the border with Iraq following invasion by Iraqi troops of a disputed border zone rich in oil. Reports from Kuwait and Iraq said Iraqi troops, after moving into the disputed area, forced Kuwaiti workers out and ripped down their tents.

NATO Approves N-Mine Sowing

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has accepted in principle a Turkish proposal that nuclear mines be sown along Turkey's border with the Soviet Union, military sources reported today. The mines would be detonated far underground and there would be no fallout problem, the Turks said. The mines would close mountain passes which might be used by invading Soviet forces.

U.S. Power Failure Darkens B.C. Areas

By The Canadian Press

A late spring snowstorm described as the most severe in recent memory left snow ranging from seven to 23 inches across southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, toppling temperatures 20-23 degrees below normal.

Heaviest snowfall of the storm, which started Wednesday, was at Lethbridge in southern Alberta where 23 inches was reported. Schools, and some businesses were closed and traffic came to a halt except for essential facilities.

The weatherman said there was no break sighted in the storm that moved across southern Alberta and Saskatchewan then into the Dakotas.

Traffic on a hill along Highway 3 west of Lethbridge was snarled by numerous transport trucks which had skidded off, across or jackknifed on the road.

Many farm homes were believed left isolated by the storm. Fear was expressed in southern Alberta that winds could cause severe drifting.

Delivery of home mail was cancelled and air flights diverted or grounded in Regina as freezing rain snarled traffic and communications throughout much of the province.

Rain, sleet and snow in other areas of the province disrupted communications and delayed buses up to six hours.

Many highways north of Regina and throughout the southern and southwestern part of the province were blocked. Canadian National Telegraphs reported all lines west of Moose Jaw and east of Qu'Appelle, 30 miles east of Regina, were down earlier today because of sleet damage.

PEARSON HAS NO RETIREMENT PLANS

'We Like Mike' Buttons Back in Vogue

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—"We like Mike" buttons are being taken off the shelf and dusted off by Liberals as word is spreading around political circles that Prime Minister Lester Pearson will stay on as government party leader much longer than some Grits had expected.

Impetus was added to the rumours circulating on Parliament Hill that Mr. Pearson will carry on for a year or more when Privy Council President Walter Gordon Wednesday urged the party's national leader to think twice about retirement plans and to remain in office indefinitely.

Liberal MP's both in the cabinet and backbenches have been quietly letting it be known that any suggestions or reports that Mr. Pearson would step down this fall were ill-founded. But Wednesday Mr. Gordon made it public that Mr. Pearson's colleagues would like him to remain in office indefinitely.

"My own belief is that a large majority of Liberals everywhere in Canada would be pleased if Mr. Pearson decided to stay on for quite some time. Quite apart from that, there does not appear to be any clear consensus about who should take his place if and when he does decide to go—although some members of the cabinet do give the impression that if no one else wants it, they just could be persuaded."

"I mention this matter only because it does color the atmosphere in Ottawa and in political circles throughout Canada these days and is bound to continue to do so until the matter is resolved."

On Sunday Mr. Pearson will be 70. He has made no public statements about early retirement. In fact at the annual meeting of the party last fall he sounded like a leader who had a new firm hold on the office and planned to be at the helm for a long time to come.

In recent public speeches here and in the U.S. he has spoken of the objectives he would like to achieve. Following the shuffle of his cabinet earlier this month with its "new" look he talked about the emphasis on youth, and spoke of leading a fresh young cabinet with bright new ideas.

He has spoken recently of the new social reforms and the Liberal party's plan for the good life for Canadians. He has emphasized that it is not good to concentrate on the old issues many of which have now lost their meaning.

Mr. Pearson is much concerned with the problems of urban living of swift movement and of mass activity. He has said that Canadian governments must face up to the problems of electronic living of less work with greater production and of more leisure and greater tensions. He has spoken of the need for recognition of a new world, new in values and new in influence.

The prime minister is setting out the targets for his government and backbenchers that they do not want to see him talking about stepping down now. They want him to carry on while he has the health and strength to do the job.

And lately the word is heard from many members of the cabinet and backbenchers that they do not want to see him talking about stepping down now. They want him to carry on while he has the health and strength to do the job.

sounds and acts like a Liberal leader, who expects to be around for some time yet, at the head of the party striving to find solutions for urgent Canadian problems.

Long War Predicted

LONDON (AP)—Secretary General U Thant of the United Nations said today there is an increasing risk of other countries becoming directly involved in the Vietnamese war.

Thant, returning to New York from a tour of five Asian countries, talked to reporters at London airport.

"I am afraid it's going to be a long war," he said. "If the present trend continues there is increasing prospect of direct involvement by some of the countries not yet involved."

Power Plants Blasted As Jets Hit Haiphong

LOOKING at wreckage of one of the worst crashes in airline history is Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus. Swiss airliner crashed near Nicosia during a thunderstorm Wednesday night. Death toll is 128.

128 DIE, TWO SURVIVE

Lightning Hits Airliner

NICOSIA, Cyprus—All but two of the 130 persons aboard a Swiss airliner on an economy vacation flight were killed today when the plane was hit by lightning and crashed while trying to land in a rain and hail storm.

In one of the worst crashes in aviation history, the four-engine turboprop Bristol Britannia airliner, known as the Whispering Giant, crashed near Nicosia during the night as it attempted to land in a rain and hail storm.

Four persons survived the crash but two of them died later in hospital.

Most of the dead were German and Swiss tourists returning from a trip to the Far East. The plane's crew included four Britons, all killed.

"This is the most terrible sight I've ever seen," said one of the first persons on the scene. "There are bodies all over the place, some of them in pieces."

TAIL SECTION INTACT

The survivors were in the tail section, the only part which remained somewhat intact.

"We kept looking but all we could find apart from those few in the tail were dead people," the rescuer said.

Greek and Cypriot policemen and soldiers, British airmen and UN peace force members worked in downpour under spotlights beamed down by hovering UN helicopters.

The plane was flying from Bombay, India, to Cairo, Egypt, but was diverted to Nicosia because of bad weather.

The owner, Gloveair of Switzerland, said it heard from the air control tower in Nicosia that the plane was struck by lightning and burst into flames.

Evidence at the scene indicated the plane hit a bump in the ground, then bounced a few hundred yards into the slope of a hillock less than 100 feet high.

Gaily colored saris and other women were seen carrying the bodies of victims.

The first wave of jets zoomed off the two carriers shortly before noon.

The Kitty Hawk's planes wheeled down on the thermal power plant known as Haiphong West, located just one-half mile from downtown Haiphong. Ten minutes later, jets from the Ticonderoga moved in to hammer the power plant known as Haiphong East, 2.1 miles from the centre of the city of more than 100,000 population and just outside the city limits.

Big Viet Port In Darkness

SAIGON (UPI)—Waves of U.S. navy jets dodging missiles and aerial mines carried the war directly into North Vietnam's port city of Haiphong today for the first time, knocking out both of the city's power plants and plunging it into darkness.

Carrier-based Skyhawk and Intruder jets swept in from the sea in two waves to hit crippling blows within a half-mile of the downtown area of the port that is North Vietnam's chief funnel for war supplies.

"This is a significant strike," said Adm. David C. Richardson, Task Force 77 commander.

"Haiphong is a vital port and the loss of power not only knocked out the lights but will reduce their capacity for unloading war supplies.

"Also it should have a tremendous psychological effect on the (North Vietnamese) people."

TURQUOISE BALLOONS

The carrier-based pilots in the raid, which U.S. spokesmen said was staged with President Johnson's approval, flew through the heaviest ground fire defences the Communists have to offer. In addition to Soviet-made SAM missiles and conventional air-to-air fire, the Communists put up turquoise-colored balloons with what were thought to be mines dangling from them.

A communiqué issued by the council, concluding its 12th annual meeting, declared that "reciprocity is an essential element of any acceptable proposal for reduction in the fighting."

The seven nation group making up SEATO—the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization—also issued a new warning against Communist dangers in the general area of southeast Asia, saying:

"Communist aggression, both overt and by subversion, infiltration and terrorism, accompanied by vicious propaganda, remains a major threat to the peace and security of the area."

France boycotted the SEATO council meeting here.

The meeting was torn by divisions among the members. Not only was France absent but Pakistan sent only an ambassador instead of a foreign minister. Pakistan has been critical of U.S. policy.

Australia's Foreign Minister Paul Hasluck has been outspokenly critical of Britain, another member, for cutting back its military strength in Southeast Asia.

Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman flatly told the council that its alliance was virtually paralyzed and little more than a "useless carcass."

The communiqué said:

"The council reaffirmed its conviction that SEATO continues to have a prime role in deterring or repelling aggression in all its forms while at the same time helping to improve economic and social conditions in the area."

Moon Shots

Blurred

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—

Surveyor III's first blurred pictures hint it may be resting in a lunar crater after a gentle touchdown in an area astronauts may someday explore.

While the three-legged craft kept its moon-scratching claw retracted, spacecraft controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said photographs radioed during the 10 hours following the landing Wednesday showed less detail than those from Surveyor I last June. But they theorized this was due to sunlight reflected into the camera.</
